7 FEB

Hacken Lee Hak-kan (born Dec 6, 1967) is a Hong Kong pop singer, actor, master of ceremonies, and association football sportscaster. He is a talented singer who has continuously received multiple music awards across four decades (1980s, 1990s, 2000s and 2010s) and up to today, he remains one of the very few singers in Hong Kong that still have significantly high popularity. He continues to release his albums regularly and was made popular by his voice that is crystal-clear and strong. So it is little surprise that Hacken has been crowned the elegant title of "Zero Defect Vocals" alongside Heavenly King Jacky Cheung.

In 2013, Hacken's song "House of cards" swept multiple awards in many grand award ceremonies, including "World's Best Song" and "Boardcasting Index" in Metro's Awards. As of 2013, he had reached 14 times in receiving the most "Outstanding Pop Singer Award" at RTHK's "Top Ten Chinese Gold Songs Awards" and has established an irreplaceable status in the music industry of Hong Kong and Asia.

A musical genius who suffered from depression, made enemies, insurmountable debt and died young. A sensational headline for Mozart's life, but what do we find in his music? His music, appealing to the young and old can be appreciated as 'easy listening' and also gratify those striving expressive melodies, technical sophistication and sheer musical grandeur. Hear Mozart at his finest, performed by klpac String Ensemble which includes 'Voi che sapete', the iconic aria from Mozart's Le nozze di Figaro (The Marriage of Figaro) that will put soprano Samantha Chew in the spotlight. So now I present you, rising with power and poise, coming from different parts of Malaysia (only from KL in actual fact), these handsome young lad and pretty ladies will remind you of the days when you are at work and crying in the office's tiny toilet cubicle or cursing your heart out at your boss's ridiculousness. This would definitely be a show that reflects your inner struggle at work and voicing out the unspoken stressfulness that you experience on a daily basis. And of course if you would be so kind, as you leave the theatre packed with immense emotions, please feel free to donate more than RM1 if you somewhat think that the performance was enjoyable. Even if the show was less than pleasing, I am sure a RM1 donation against your conscience would bring you good fortune as well. So quick, call now to reserve your seat while they last! SARIMAH IBRAHIM

Being real with love and life

Written by Kathlyn Ursula D'Souza

Irish-Malay, a sister to three younger brothers.

A psychology degree holder but also a black belt in karate, a Pilates instructor and an English language teacher.

A TV host for the last 19 years. Started with Disney Channel and a kids' show on ntv7 in 1996.

Went to sekolah rendah kebangsaan, and had absolutely no intention of being in the limelight, except to study psychology and go to the US to become a clinical psychologist.

Got discovered while working part time in TGIF Subang Parade.

It was an avalanche effect – advertisements, Disney Channel, ntv7 and Malay films and eventually into singing and Astro (hosting Akademi Fantasia and Biggest Loser Asia).

Joined Red FM in 2011, Mix FM in 2012 and currently with Bella ntv7.

Recently married to beau Tunku Jamie Nadzimuddin.

Has her own web show called Sarimah's 2 Sen on YouTube where she discusses important topics such as phone addiction and eating disorders. This also means she is concurrently building her own talk show.

She has a new Malay song coming up – 'Destinasi Ku'.

She goes for Pilates twice a week, quite intensely!

She is a diver (she has done about 350 dives and names Sipadan as one of the best diving spots in the world).

Sarimah Ibrahim and her husband Tunku Nadzimuddin (fondly known as Jamie)

Q: Makes you the happiest?

A: The happiest me is when I exercise and sleep enough and have really good food. When I'm happy, I get a sense of self-esteem and I'm a better wife, better friend and better entertainer – a better everything.

Q: Describe yourself in 3 words.

A: Sensitive, determined and empathetic.

Q: Where do you see yourself in the next 5 years?

A: You know, everyone's been sort of looking at me and going, "Well, Sarimah, you're married now. You want to have kids, right?" Yeah, but even if I have kids, if I'm blessed with them, I'm still going to do what I do.

I don't think people should stop being their own person just because they gave life. Men give life through women and they don't stop doing what they do. If a woman stops doing what she did before, that would be boring for the partner. You have to stay you, but with an extension or an added skill. It depends on what God has in store for me. If He wants to give me kids, twins, for example, I'm sure I'll be knocked out physically for a while but I know I will be back into the fitness thing and doing what I do as soon as I can.

Q: Have you got any personal heroes?

A: My mum for her strength, perseverance and stubbornness. My dad for his silent patience and for instilling in me values – he made sure I went to sekolah kebangsaan, he made sure I balik kampung and mengaji.

Professionally, I look to people like Oprah Winfrey because she defied stereotypes – size, appearance, status and colour – and she became the most successful TV presenter of all time. Ellen DeGeneres, too. She's not of the typical Hollywood glamour, she's her own person.

I look up to people who are comfortable with themselves. I cannot stand pretentiousness and superficiality. I get paid to be someone I'm not when I'm acting, but when I'm off work, I would want to be myself. If you're not yourself then what kind of life have you lived? Whose life have you lived if you cannot be comfortable in your own skin?

Q: What motivates you to succeed?

A: At first it was survival. I wanted to make enough money for a living. Then it became I want to better myself so my family can be proud of me. And then, I want to be the best me for me, so I can feel comfortable in my own skin.

Now, I am motivated by the excitement for what life has to offer. When I wake up I tell myself, "Hey, you know Sarimah, luckily you woke up." People out there are dying, in the midst of wars and you wake up, have got a nice place to live, you've got family ... what have you got to complain about?

What motivates me now is much simpler than what it used to be; it is desire to live fully everyday and be present. I'm scared that if I'm not present everyday, the last thing I would want to think about is how I did not live my life fully.

LOVEQ: Best advice anyone has ever given.

A: "Self-serving for other people" – but I do remember once being told, "Make sure you give a lot but give to yourself as well at the end of the day, otherwise you'll be empty." If you give and give – time, affection, care – at the end of the day you might have nothing for yourself.

Another thing I've been told is ... just because you've been hurt before doesn't mean you cannot trust again. It's quite tough to trust when you've been hurt. We have all been hurt in some way or another, but I think that's the biggest battle we have because if you don't trust, there really is nothing there. You wouldn't know how to be your best.

For the singles: Never, ever compromise – especially with regards to your essential needs. Don't think, "Oh my god, I'm at a certain age – I need to have somebody. Or, if I don't do certain things this person wouldn't like me." No, no, no. That would be the exact thing the person would dislike you for in the long run. When you compromise yourself, it would always come out at the end. You'll start playing a lot of games and it'll be tit-for-tat. Just be yourself.

I know a lot of singles say, "I am being myself, but nobody wants to date me!" There's no such thing. That means you're still not being you, you're trying to be the you-that-is-single-and-looking-for-someone. If we were really us, we'd focus on our hobby, job or family and the right person will pop up naturally. If you're going to focus on I'm-going-to-go-out-now-and-find-someone, is that really you?

I learnt that lesson when I met [Jamie]. My friends asked to meet for makan, but I said no because I had full-faced makeup and I was tired and hot after a job and I wanted to go home. They eventually convinced me and I gave in, with the thought of just going to see my friends to eat and then going home to wash my face and rest. And then I bumped into him. Totally by accident.

Prior to that, in the dating scene, when I thought I wanted to find a person with certain qualities – it never happened. Attracted the wrong kinds, you know? I guess the universe has a way of making sure that you get what you need, not what you want.

Q: On the modern dating scene

A: Gone are the days when you took the effort to show up and date someone. Now there's just Skype and other things. It's just too easy these days. When everything becomes too easy, that means it becomes more disposable. Nothing is valued as much and that's a dangerous thing. I'm a bit concerned about how people approach dating now – seems to be an awful lot of clicking and swiping. You're competing with 10, 000 other profiles that are filtered and touched up, and it's not even real. How can you even compete? You know what? I think dating should be one thing: go to the beach on the first date, under the sun with no makeup, go to the sea and swim. And then we'll see who's whom.

Q: Advice for those struggling to keep up with said modern dating scene

A: Unfortunately, it's a bit of a survival of the fittest. I think you've got to find something about yourself that's unique other than your face because you cannot compete with the amount of filtering and touching-up.

Men are feeling threatened too, because they are confused by the way women are portraying each other and themselves. They don't understand anymore what women's values are. How can you respect a woman when she's flaunting every single thing she has upfront? You've got a girl who flaunts and flirts and then the other side you've got a covered-up one who connects with you – so it's creating confusion. How can you really tell? We're victimising ourselves, honestly.

But honestly, go out on as many dates as you can and you'll slowly start to filter out to good men from the bad. They are out there, they exist – I found one.

Q: What counts as a perfect date?

A: A perfect date is when two people are comfortable being each other – not pretending to be someone they're not. Ideally, they put all their cards on the table. 'This is my crap, and this is my good', and then you can really judge. It's when people start to pretend and hold back and be somebody they are not that it gets imperfect because you're going to find out eventually. What's perfect to me is when everyone comes clean and says, "Hey, this is what happened, this is how I've been and this is where I want to be – can you be part of that journey with me?"

Q: What's married life like?

A: Married life is a lot of work. A lot of people think that married life is going to fall into place. It's not. I think you truly get to know someone after 10 or 15 years. You can know facts about a person but not know a person's essence until many, many years. What marriage is giving me is a structure, a stable structure so I don't feel so alone. I feel like I have a bigger purpose, I have a partner to experience day-to-day life with. A witness, a partner, a mate, a friend ... somebody who's there that I can depend on. But it's a lot of hard work because everybody has bad days and you clash and you don't get along, and parts of their life that you may not like and parts of your life that they might not like. It's about trying to gel.

But, it's very rewarding when you think, "This person may be with me until I die." And that's wonderful.

Q: Tell us about your husband.

A: He's quiet and mysterious-looking. However, he's opened up sides and parts of him to me that no one else knows about. And I really treasure that because I feel like I've got an insight into his true essence of being that no one else does. And I'd like to think that I offer him the same. I find him to be very patient, very sensitive and determined. I really admire these qualities in a man.

Q: What is love to you?

A: Love is providing a feeling of safety, belongingness and support to another person.

It's not saying the word 'love'. It's doing things that make another person feel safe and cared for, like they belong. That's love.

Love is many actions. It's not just a word, it's what you do. It can simply be swapped with 'I red you' or 'I orange you', it's just a word. But it's the things that you do.

Q: What are your favourite love songs?

A: Savage Garden's I Knew I Loved You and Firehouse's I Live My Life For You. I find these two to be very meaningful songs.

Q: One should love ...

A: By actions, not words.

CHINESE NEW YEARQ: Fondest memory of Chinese New Year

A: Eating a lot of oranges and getting enough of Vitamin C. I also have a lot of memories when I was younger in school, going to my friends' house for Chinese New Year, and hanging out with them, eating and just remembering wearing cheongsam. I remember food and laughter. There are so many types of people in Malaysia.

"Happy Chinese New Year! May the Year of the Monkey be as creative, fun and upbeat as the monkey itself. And I hope it brings people everything they hope and need."

- Sarimah Ibrahim

The Year of the Monkey

A careful year

The Chinese animal zodiac is known as shengxiao (shnng-sshyaoww/ 'born resembling'), a repeating cycle of 12 years with each year identifying a symbolic animal and its believed abilities. Traditionally, the zodiac animals were used to date the years. These signs are the rat, ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and pig. It is calculated according to the Chinese lunar calendar.

The Monkey is ninth out of the 12 animals in the Chinese zodiac. With the beckoning of 2016 comes the year of the Monkey. If you're born in 1956, 1968, 1980, 1992, 2004 and 2016 past February 8, your zodiac animal is definitely the monkey.

As well as having a Chinese zodiac sign, according to the Chinese element theory, each year is associated with one of five elements: Gold (Metal), Wood, Water, Fire, or Earth. Each element comes once every 60 years. Here are the five types of element monkeys and their characteristics :

WOOD MONKEY

1944, 2004

Always ready to help others.
Compassionate, with strong self-esteem,
but stubborn

FIRE MONKEY

1956, 2016

Ambitious and adventurous, but irritable

EARTH MONKEY

1908, 1968

Frank, optimistic, and fearless

GOLD MONKEY

1920, 1980

Smart, quick-witted, and confident, but also irritable and stubborn

WATER MONKEY

1932, 1992

Smart, quick-witted, fond of being in the limelight, but haughty

THE LUCKY AND UNLUCKY THINGS FOR “MONKEYS”

As with all signs, the Monkey also has its fair share of lucky and unlucky elements to take heed of.

Lucky

Lucky numbers: 4 and 9

Lucky days: the 14th and 28th of any Chinese lunar calendar month

Lucky colours: white, blue, gold

Lucky flowers: chrysanthemum, crape-myrtle

Lucky directions: north, northwest, west

Lucky months: Chinese lunar months 8 and 12

Unlucky colours: red, pink

Unlucky numbers: 2 and 7

Unlucky directions: south, southeast

Unlucky months: Chinese lunar months 7 and 11

Unlucky

2016 ON MONKEYS

2016 is the year of the Monkey. Monkey years are believed to be unlucky for people born in a year of the Monkey. “Monkeys” are particularly careful about their health, love life, career, and investments during the Monkey years. However, you can always turn misfortune into fortune by seeking the blessings of lucky stars.

COULD 2016 BE THE YEAR OF MONEY FOR MONKEYS?

Great, unexpected fortune will find its way to Monkeys in 2016, so they will not have to worry about shortage of livelihoods. The best months for them to make their fortune will be the second and twelfth Chinese lunar months, during which they should make full use of their time to invest and cash in. They should avoid gambling, speculating and collecting illegal or greedy gains, or they might just lose everything they have, especially in the third Chinese lunar month.

MONKEYS MAY HAVE DIFFICULTY IN RELATIONSHIPS IN 2016.

Monkeys’ relationships will be rather dull in 2016. The more they long for a relationship, the harder it will be for them to get one. They may encounter a love interest that may develop if it happens naturally, especially in the seventh and twelfth Chinese lunar months. They might have a happy ending if they seize the right opportunities.

A YEAR OF HEALTH RISKS, ESPECIALLY TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Monkeys will suffer from minor illnesses. However, they will not come to much harm if they are careful. If they take great care of their health, the symptoms will lessen. They should, however, be aware of traffic safety as they go about their daily routine, and never take risks. Great attention should also be paid to food safety to ensure illness is avoided. Their health horoscope is never above neutral, but worst in the fourth and tenth Chinese lunar months.

THIS MIGHT JUST BE A PROSPEROUS CAREER YEAR

Monkeys can have prosperous careers in 2016, if correctly aligned with the Tai Sui star. They will be able to make breakthroughs, if they focus on their career and discipline themselves. Without discipline and hard work, they will hardly achieve anything. They should guard against untrustworthy people and discipline themselves in order to avoid trouble. The luckiest months for them will be the second, fifth, and twelfth Chinese lunar months, during which they should seize opportunities instead of missing them.

It's Okay

TO BE ALONE ON VALENTINE'S DAY

KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

We understand that there are only two ways this is going to play out: you're either going to anticipate or dread February 14. And you're either going to dress up, dine out and get showered with affection, teddy bears, roses and chocolates or spend the night wrapped up in your blanket like a human burrito. Also, you're either going to think 'love is in the air', or 'love is bleh'. If you're the latter, then we've got you covered. Here at KL Lifestyle, although we're all for Valentine's Day, we are also proud to celebrate Singles Awareness Day (S.A.D.).

For those celebrating S.A.D., fret and don't mope because we've got 8 reasons to tell you why you're better off single this time around:

YOU SAVE A TON OF CASH.

The average person spends at least RM150 on dinner (excluding gifts and flowers and Valentine's Day paraphernalia). Automatically, that should let you see how much richer you'd be if you spend Valentine's Day alone.

IT'S ALL ABOUT YOU.

You get to spoil yourself. You don't have to think about somebody else, about what he or she likes and what he or she would enjoy doing. You get to shower yourself with love. Get some pizza, a huge tub of ice cream and you get to be in your pajamas the whole day. However, we do not recommend listening to love songs and watching old romantic movies ...

SINGLE, NOT MISERABLE AND READY TO MINGLE.

If you're not emotionally fit to spend the day alone, round up all your single friends and do something spontaneous together. Make fun of all the couples at restaurants, maybe? Most couples will tell you that it's better to be single, and while that's hard to believe at times, you get absolute freedom to do whatever you like with whoever you like.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO IMPRESS ANYONE.

Even if you've decided to splurge on yourself, you won't have to worry about what your significant other might think about your change or upgrade in appearance. Say you decided to go for a fancy shave or get a new set of silk lingerie, all that matters is that you love it.

YOU AVOID PRESSURE AND DISAPPOINTMENT.

You can scratch off buying gifts for someone and planning an evening out. Also, you don't have to worry about not liking a gift or worse, not getting a gift at all. You're safe on both sides.

YOU'RE SELF-SUFFICIENT, AND THAT'S GREAT.

You are fine with being alone, or if you're not, you will eventually learn to love it and embrace it. Be proud of the life you've created or are creating on your own (and on your own terms) – you're taking credit for all of it.

YOU'VE GOT TIME TO DEVELOP YOURSELF.

You know what they say – love because you're ready, and not because you're lonely. Trust that when it happens, you will be ready. For now, you're doing brilliant! Plus, it's better to be single and healthy than be stuck in a relationship and miserable, yes?

YOU GET TO CELEBRATE YOURSELF.

You're not in some place bad, and you've got absolute freedom and liberty to do whatever you want. The future is full of possibilities and hope. Relish in the knowledge that you have got it going on, and that there are people who love you for who you are (that includes you, too), and they are able to show and tell you every day instead of just one commercialised day.

10 facts about SPENDING AND VALENTINE'S DAY

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

MAKAN-MAKAN

Anyone familiar with the infectious energy that surrounds Fly Fm would definitely know who Hafiz is. Calling himself a radio jock, TV host, emcee, content producer, social stalker and a Kanye West wannabe, we caught up with this vivacious personality to get him to dish out details on his favourite food and hangout spots, as well as what goes on in his life.

Kathlyn Ursula D'Souza speaks to

of Fly FM

First, tell us about yourself.

I am a 33-year old radio jock, TV host, TV content producer, lip-sync artiste and Kanye's long-lost brother. I go by the name Kanye East or HawtDang Hatim when I'm rapping. I am a massive comic geek and I love listening to music. Thank god, I work in radio to fulfil my daily music consumption.

And a little bit about how you got into your current career of being a radio show host.

When I finished my studies in computer engineering, I gave myself 2 months to be part of the entertainment industry. I worked for a production company (RedComm), to learn what it takes to be a director. I was working on a TV project which required me to shoot at the FLY studio in KLIA. Two days after that, I got a call from FLY for an audition. 2 months later, I jumped on board FLY's space ship and now I've been with FLY for 8 years and counting.

Fried Chicken

Malaysian Fried Rice

What's your daily diet like?

It's quite unpredictable. I usually have fruits for breakfast and then something heavy and sinful for brunch like nasi lemak and in the evening, I try to eat more greens.

And when it comes to guilty pleasures in food, what are your favourites?

FRIED CHICKEN and FRIED RICE! ARGHHH I am so ASIAN!

Name us 3 Malaysian food that you absolutely cannot live without.

ARGHH - FRIED RICE! Siput Sedut (don't know what it is in English) ... Snail Sucking?! And my ultimate food is Apam Balik.

Share with us a few of your favourite dining places, or even coffee haunts. What are your favourite dishes there?

If it's Nasi Lemak ... Village Park has the best! If I am craving for Fried Rice; Homst in TTDI has the best.

Do you cook? Any signature Hafiz dishes?

Hahaha the last time I cooked was when I was in college. I used to make chicken Parmesan pizza. But my signature dishes are Ayam Goreng Naga Merah (Ayam Masak Merah) and Ayam Mutiara Goreng DiRendam (chicken cooked in oyster sauce).

What are your tips for eating healthy?

Eat breakfast like a king, lunch like a prince and dinner like you're a bacteria. I try to follow the Koreans; make sure each meal has a lot of colours. That's their way in making sure your meals are balanced.

How do you keep yourself healthy and looking/feeling good?

I play futsal every week and try to walk wherever I go. And I drink plenty of water to minimise pimple outbreaks.

What do you look forward to this year, in terms of career and personal life?

I have a TV show coming on TV9 called Kami Gila Bola where I'll be hosting with Hot FM DJ Haziq. And I want to be the best dad ever to my daughter Neya. Hopefully, I'll get to take her to Disneyland.

Lastly, what fuels and inspires you?

I feed off energy from people who enjoy what I do on air; it gives me the motivation to be funnier so that I can entertain better. Now that I am a dad, my daughter is my inspiration to achieve more, so that I am able to give her what she needs growing up.

Sepiring

For the realest Malaysian food fix

BY KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

We Malaysians have a thing for food – we admit that proudly. With our great love for food comes a great desire to try many other things, and with the new age of globalisation, we're simply spoilt for choice. However, there are instances where we simply must revisit our roots and fall in love with Malaysian food once more, and what better place to accommodate that than Sepiring.

Sepiring recently underwent a rebranding; they were formerly known as Sweet Chat and due to the common public misconception that they only served desserts made them undertake an entire makeover.

Now, based on the name alone, you would already know what to expect. You would be welcomed with phrases such as "Teh Tarik So Menarik", "Burger Worth Satay-ing For" (this is because they have a burger with the patty made out of satay), "Jalan-jalan Cari Ulam" and "Keep Calm and Curry On."

We got to try some of their highlights and they were fantastic. Finding your favourites is absolutely guaranteed such as the Penang Rojak (spicy, sour and sweet in all the right places), Bubur Cha Cha (with yam, sweet potato, tapioca soaking in pure no-nonsense santan), and Yam Cake (where you can actually taste some dried prawns, chicken and actual yam instead of the dough-y, flour-y texture that you might get from other places).

You might have thought of this at least once in your life – "I can't be Malaysian unless I have rice". Here is your excuse to indulge, especially since they serve Nasi Lemak Rendang Ayam Kunyit and Nyonya Nasi Ulam with Ayam Percik (doesn't the idea of thinly sliced lemongrass stalk, keropok lekor and ayam percik just make you salivate?). There's also the Spicy Smoked Beef Pasta if you're looking for another carby variety. Although the name suggests a more Western approach, the taste is truly Malaysian as it takes its form in a very Negeri Sembilan way with its daging masak cili api.

Curry Laksa

Nasi Lemak with Ayam Rendang Kunyit

If you're more of a laksa person, you won't be disappointed. You can choose between the Nyonya Laksa and Curry Laksa. If you prefer a lighter, airy taste for your laksa, you'd best be satisfied with the Nyonya one but if you prefer a more flavoursome, heady and heavily-laden with meat laksa, then the Curry one would do it for you.

Even the coffee here, if you are a coffee lover yourself, are infused with Malaysian ingredients. For instance, they've got the gula Melaka Latte, where the base is, as you might have guessed, gula Melaka and the froth at the top is sprinkled with Gula Melaka shavings. Another option is the Gula Melaka Affogato – quite a pleasant taste if you're not keen on coffee but willing to give it a shot (of espresso).

Now, durians. It's not truly Malaysian if they don't have durians, right? Have it in the form of pancakes, as the Durian Pancakes are so meticulously put together (in thin layers of crepe-like yellow skin wrapped around durian pieces smothered with whipped cream).

All we can say is ... we walked out full, evidently, and feeling more Malaysian than ever. If you'd like to revisit your roots – not that we're suggesting you've forgotten them – drop by Sepiring and be reminded once more why Malaysian food is the best.

Mama San Kuala Lumpur

Pleasing your epicurean needs

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

The Mama San is a well-known character who is a strict but at times an indulgent madam of authority in an Asian gentlemen's club. She takes care of all her girls with affection. "That's pretty much how I see myself, keeping the authenticity of the cuisine culture in the restaurants I manage and I do that by learning from women across the region, who are willing to pass on their knowledge," said Chef Will Meyrick.

Mama San is a gorgeous, warm, welcoming and globally-acclaimed restaurant spearheaded by Chef Meyrick and is based in Bali. Being a street food enthusiast, he expresses his love of authentic Asian flavours and textures into his carefully researched menus.

Recently, The Melium Group together with Mama San announced the opening of Mama San Kuala Lumpur at Suria KLCC.

The new restaurant is influenced by the design concept of 1920s Shanghai – walls are ornamented with old-style photographs and retro-esque mural wallpaper.

The food at Mama San is not only Indonesian. It also includes Chinese, Indian, Malay, Singaporean, Thai, Cambodian and Vietnamese flavours. Arriving with an empty stomach, we were keen on what was to come forth.

For starters, we tried the Soft Shell Crab Rujak salad. This salad also features green mango, rose apple, mint and peanuts with tamarind dressing for that authenticity. The salad was fresh together with the soft shell crab and tofu that packed quite a crunch and was reminiscent of the rojak buah. We loved how great this was as a starter.

The Dendeng Balado is a signature dish here. Traditionally, the dendeng balado is made of thinly sliced beef that is cooked to sort of jerky-like dish. However, at Mama San, the beef is chunky – just the way we like it. Drove of patrons come back to try this amazing caramelised short rib beef that's cooked with kaffir lime, chilli and lemon basil. The dish was fragrant, hot and definitely addictive. We had this with some steamed white rice and couldn't get enough of how tender and flavoursome the dendeng balado was.

Another notable dish during our visit was the Red Curry Barbecued Duck with Lychees. This was reminiscent of the traditional Thai red curry dish but with a twist – lychees. The curry was sweeter than usual but interesting as the lychee flavour was pleasantly aromatic as well. For that touch of authenticity, apple eggplants were also used in the curry.

For dessert, we tried the Vietnamese version of steamed 'pau', the Nutella pak boi with vanilla ice cream and Kintamani espresso for that Balinese twist. The pak bois were soft, fluffy and steamed to perfection. When you bite into the pakboi, there's a rush of warm and chocolatey hazelnut sauce that ignites your senses. Try it dipped with the Kintamani espresso and vanilla ice cream affogato concoction – the creaminess of the affogato will double the pak boi's delight. For those with an affinity for durians, the Durian Pannacota is definitely worth an order. The pannacota comes with sticky white rice and vanilla cream, kind of like the Malay version of durian pulut but in a martini glass and less overbearing. The pannacota itself was well made and the durian flavour didn't completely overpower the dessert, which made it enjoyable for most.

With an ambience that would make you want to lounge around for hours and food that retains in your memory that draws you back for more, Mama San Kuala Lumpur is everything we find desirable for a memorable meal out. If you find yourself meandering around Suria KLCC with a hankering to try something new, just head on to the Park level and find Mama San waiting for you.

Memory Makers @ Traders

Truly an unforgettable experience

BY KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

We were told that Gobo Upstairs Lounge and Grill, Gobo Chit Chat and SkyBar at Traders Hotel were launching a new selection of dishes – dishes that are carefully orchestrated and created to leave a permanent mark in the mind, tongue, stomach and we suspect, the heart too.

The other nugget of information that we were given was that, these dishes are a result of all the clients' feedback, preferences and critique accumulated over time and after the painstaking process of compiling, Memory Makers is ready for the public to indulge.

3some Meat Platter

Nasi Lemak 2.0

Mushroom Tea

We must say, this was truly a unique start to our meal. We were presented with a very light flavoursome wild mushroom-infused broth, served with salted tempura oyster mushrooms on the side. Although one may be expecting a broth that is salty and bitter to taste, this was refreshingly light, addictive and teased the palate enough to work up our appetite. Munching on the crunchy tempura oyster mushrooms and washing it down with the tea (was perfect for a heavenly appetiser.

Some Meat Platter (for 2 persons)

An oh-so-tender medley of 3 with pumpkin puree for chicken, artichoke and coriander pesto for lamb and rosemary and bordelaise sauce for the tenderloin steak for the meat lovers. However, if you're not keen on meat, they'd be more than glad to switch to seafood for you.

Nasi Lemak 2.0

This is an upgrade, we were told. The rice alone smells so good that it is guaranteed to have you salivating in no time – it is steamed in the coconut shell together with the coconut water and milk. The special trick is to eat the rice with fresh coconut flesh scooped from the container that is the shell of a real coconut. The presentation is ace, and it reminded us of a little tropical island, with uncooked rice holding the shell in place while you scoop the sinful rice out. And don't worry, they haven't forgotten the spicy prawn sambal, anchovies and chicken rending or 'ayam berempah'. You're all set for the best nasi lemak ever.

Le Bon Vivant Ice Kepal

"Good living" is what this dessert is named after, and it is certainly fitting. If you prefer to have a little bit (or rather, a lot) of fun with your dessert, this is it. Hack your way through the ice with a spoon to find the surprise inside the shaved ice (trust us, there is no ladylike way to eat this – you need to go all out.) Inspired by the local ice ball dessert from the 70s and 80s, the ice kepal is topped with raspberries and drenched with syrup.

Cherry BOMMM

Selangor Sling

Cherry BOMMM

Now this here, is a once-in-a-lifetime treat. Take a picture if you must, but we recommend a video shot. On a large plate is a sphere of white chocolate on a field of edible flowers and raspberries, and you get to watch as dark chocolate is poured on the white chocolate shell that crumbles to reveal the treat within. Visual treat aside, once you've scooped a bit into your mouth, you're sold.

Le Bon Vivant Ice Kepal

Selangor Sling

Tanqueray gin, hibiscus syrup, elder flower syrup, pineapple juice, dash of absinthe, shaken and topped with a roselle flower all team up together to give you a seductive-looking cocktail to wash down all the richness that you've just consumed.

SECOND SUNDAY

The long “weekend”
you need

31, Jalan SS 22/19, 47400 Petaling
Jaya, Selangor, Malaysia
Closed on Tuesdays.

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

Second Sunday opened its doors in August of 2015 in the bustling area of Damansara Jaya. Innovative and effervescent owners who aim to please the crowd with comfort food spearhead this restaurant and cafe and offering an interesting concept of brunch or all-day breakfasts.

Second Sunday is rapidly becoming a first choice for those who desperately need their dose of weekend feel, even on the weekdays. We met up with Basil from Second Sunday, a young entrepreneur of 26, at his comfort food café.

Upon entering Second Sunday, one would notice the homey charm around the café. Though it sticks to quite a minimalist design concept, the café is cozy and inviting. It's something like self-service over here but not all the way - patrons are encouraged to grab a menu upon entering at the menu 'coat' hanger and make an order at the counter. But that's fine when you're waiting for one of Klang Valley's best pancakes.

The menu is enticing with all kinds of sweet and savoury pancakes, breakfast options and even main courses. The breakfast or brunch menu lasts until 5.30 pm while the pancakes are available all day as they are a huge hit here.

First up, we tried the Peppermint and Chocolate Chip Pancake. When it arrived, I swear we were already salivating. The pancakes were topped with a scoop of vanilla ice cream, strawberries and drizzled with chocolate sauce. As Second Sunday prides itself for its pancakes, the pancakes are done extremely well – light, fluffy and the flavour packs a punch. As the pancakes are infused with peppermint and cocoa, it magnificently balances the flavour well. The ice cream serves it's creamy and cold function on a hot and cold plate as well.

The crème de la crème of pancakes at Second Sunday is definitely the Local 'Pankak', wittily named with a local accent. The Local Pankak is the star of the show featuring pandan and coconut pancakes topped with caramelised bananas and toasted desiccated coconut. To add to the local factor, the pancakes are served with a rich, indulgent gula Melaka syrup and coconut ice cream on the side. The pancakes are very reminiscent of the local kuih cara manis, a snack that's made of pandan-flavoured batter, but fluffier and bigger. The bananas are tender from being caramelised and paired so well with the pancake and various types of coconut on the dish. We absolutely loved this – this is definitely how you introduce local flavours into a Western classic.

We also tried the Sunny Side Ups from the brunch menu that features an open-face sandwich with double sunny side ups laced with crispy cheddar cheese and served on toasted sourdough with avocado slices, sautéed mushrooms and smoked salmon. This is a sort of healthy alternative for those who are not up for refined carbs (not me). Basil also mentioned that you could have your eggs however you liked and not just griddled with cheese. Another item that customers seem to love is the Number Five – a tortilla chicken pesto wrap with pineapple, sautéed mushrooms and served with fries topped with honey mustard sauce. This is a quick lunch that fills you up pretty nicely for all your daily activities. Not to mention, it tastes amazing as well. Our teammate could not have had enough of this.

All in all, we definitely loved our visit to Second Sunday. It was almost like being pampered with all these nostalgic comfort food in the comfort of your own home for breakfast. The only difference is you're not in your pajamas. Need another day of the weekend? A meal at Second Sunday would give you just that.

Y Salted Egg YOLK

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

Salted egg yolk is commonly known for being incorporated into Oriental dishes. However, looking back at the past year, we've seen a surge of interest in salted egg yolks everywhere. We've seen them in croissants, waffles, and even chocolate cakes. This month, we've listed our top favourite salted egg dishes/desserts around.

SALTED EGG YOLK CREPE

Strangers at 47 is no stranger to being one of the most innovative creperies around. That being said, of course they would have a crepe on the menu that is stuffed with seafood and salted egg yolk. The 'Shore To Please' features a crepe comprising of Cajun-esque tiger prawns, battered squid and salted egg yolk. Creamy, savoury and 'shore' to please the crowd.

Strangers at 47, 47, Jalan 17/45, Seksyen 17, 46400 Petaling Jaya, Selangor.

SALTED EGG YOLK TOFU

Our vegetarian friends need some salted egg yolk loving too. So behold Kam Kitchen's salted egg yolk beancurd dish. Bursting with flavour on the outside, soft on the inside.

Kam Kitchen, No. 6, Jalan 18, Kampung Cheras Baru, Kuala Lumpur.

SALTED EGG CUSTARD BUN

We particularly love Dolly Dim Sum's take on the salted egg custard buns. What's more is everyone can join in on the fun as the buns are halal. These buns are pillowy soft and ooze with rich golden salted egg yolk custard that might have you begging for more. Do yourself a favour and don't share a bun just to cut calories, live a little.

Dolly Dim Sum, Lot G9 Ground Floor, Avenue K, 156 Jalan Ampang, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

SALTED EGG YOLK CHEESECAKE

Though some may cringe at the mention of a salted egg yolk cheesecake due to its 'uncharted territory' label, we got curious. So we paid Totoro Gourmet kitchen a visit. After a bite of the salted egg cheesecake, we were sold. The cheesecake was smoother and richer than usual with an interesting combination of sweet and salty that was strangely appetising. However, we feel that this maybe an acquired taste for some.

Kuala Lumpur, Wilayah Persekutuan

SALTED EGG SOFT SHELL CRAB

Now here's something we're not quite familiar with but absolutely adoring, especially since sometimes we just can't bother with crab shells. These soft shell crabs have been deep fried to a beautiful golden brown and topped with a silky and luxurious coat off salted egg yolk sauce. This makes for a very indulgent dish, so be sure to go easy on this one and have it occasionally.

Homst Restaurant, 48, Persiaran Zaaba, 60000, TTDI, KL.

Taman Tun Dr. Ismail

The Taman Tun Dr. Ismail is well known as a café hub. With all these innovative and creative cafes popping up in the district to fulfil your Instagram cravings, what about real and authentic food that hits all the right spots? We ventured out to Taman Tun Dr. Ismail to find great, simple food that gives you the full bang for your buck.

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

Nasi Campur and Thai food fare

Santai in Taman Tun Dr. Ismail is a local watering hole that serves an array of mixed rice dishes and some superb Thai fare. We tried the mixed Tom Yam that was filled to the brim with meat and seafood. The broth of the Tom Yam itself was delightfully flavoursome with all the right hints of lemongrass, kaffir lime leaves and other spices. Pair it with white rice and a side of telur bungkus and you're having a great meal already.

Santai Restaurant and Café, 10, Persiaran Zaaba, Taman Tun Dr Ismail, 60000, Malaysia

Butter chicken

Though we love the Chinese-style butter chicken that is sweet and spicy, we're also avid fans of the Indian-style butter chicken. This version of the butter chicken has a more savoury flavour though it retains the creaminess. We absolutely love how Mai Street Café executes the Indian style butter chicken at a student price tag. If it fills you up, tastes great and is cheap, you don't really have an excuse to not try it out.

Mai Street Café, 15, Lorong Datuk Sulaiman 1, Taman Tun Dr Ismail, 60000 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Mutton Thosai

The thosai is technically one of our favourite “healthier” options for breakfast. At Devi’s Corner in TTDI, you could get a thosai with mutton cooked right into the bread. We love how soft the thosai is here and paired with great minced mutton masala enclosed in the thosai, like it’s a gift. Have yours to go with its variety of condiments.

Devi’s Corner, 38, Jalan Datuk Sulaiman, Taman Tun Dr Ismail, 60000 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Putu Piring

This rice flour patty with gula Melaka on the inside is easily one of our favourite afternoon snacks. Steamed to perfection, the putu piring is somewhat like the Indian putu mayam but more solid and kuih-like. We love how dots of brown sugar peek out of the putu piring as it caramelises.

Jalan Tun Mohd. Fuad 1, Taman Tun Dr. Ismail, 60000, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

Nasi Lemak Kukus

What’s street food without your local nasi lemak fix, right? In Jalan Burhanuddin Helmi is Nasi Lemak Kukus Rosli. Drove of people swarm his stall right before the morning grind for his famed sambal sotong. The proprietor of Nasi lemak Rosli used to have his own stand-alone stall but now he operates from a stall in the Putik Pauh restaurant in TTDI. Be sure to head over early if you’d like to get your dose of his nasi lemak kukus.

More Orange, More Ong

Orange-inspired treats to bring in Chinese New Year cheer

BY KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

When we think of Chinese New Year, the first thing that comes to mind is mandarin oranges. Most of us will be going through boxes upon boxes of mandarin oranges during the first few days of celebrating it, but here we give you a couple of ideas for treats infused with orange, our very own ode to the fruit that is synonymous with one of the brightest celebrations in our country.

TIGER RADLER MANDARIN ORANGE

Double up on the prosperity and merriment when you gift your loved ones the quintessential mandarin oranges coupled with Tiger's special release this festivity, Tiger Radler Mandarin Orange.

The new variant has been concocted with a slight twist to the original Tiger Radler recipe - the zesty flavour of natural lemon juice has been swapped with the reviving taste of mandarin orange juice. Like the lemon variant launched two years ago, this drink will definitely appeal to both beer and non-beer drinkers alike.

ORANGE MACAROOON

Levain Boulangerie Patisserie is famed for their splendid collection of cookies and macaroons and naturally, they'd have one to suit our CNY theme. Their orange macaroon is deliciously light, cheerfully coloured and incredibly flavourful.

*Levain Boulangerie Patisserie
No. 7, Jalan Delima Off Jalan Imbi,
55100 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia*

CREPE SUZETTE

This is Boathouse TTDI's signature dessert – wedges of caramelised orange flambéed with Cointreau and Cognac, served on a French frepe doused in orange butter sauce and caramel, topped with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Va va voom!

*16, Lorong Rahim Kajai 14, Taman Tun Dr
Ismail, 60000 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia*

ORANGE POPPY SEED POUND CAKE

Derived from the traditional pound cake made of one pound of each ingredient - flour, butter, sugar and eggs, the chef has refined the recipe to make its very own Orange Poppy Seed Pound Cake. Made of fine butter, zesty oranges and loads of poppy seed, for that little 'crackle' in every bite. Lovely with coffee or tea during your CNY celebration.

CHOCOLATE ORANGE CUPCAKE

We know that cupcakes are best consumed when they are flavoured with chocolate or vanilla or both, but we simply thought that Bisou's Chocolate Orange Cupcake is simply too delicious to resist – take a look at the cute, little orange perched on top!

WORLD HIJAB DAY

COVERED AND COVETED

tutorial by Hijabista and Stylist Nabiilabee

February 1 marks World Hijab Day, a day that celebrates the freedom of choice for women everywhere to don the hijab. As a tribute to World Hijab Day, we've put together two chic, easy and versatile looks for you to try out.

DAILY VERSATILE HIJAB LOOK

1. First, place an inner scarf that's lightweight and comfortable (the tropics is no place to sweat underneath layers).
2. Secondly, partially fold in the edge of your shawl on one side and place the folded side on top of your head. Make a tiny V at the top for a sharp look and pin the shawl together under your chin securely.
3. Be sure to make one side of the scarf longer than the other. This will be of a lot of use in the later steps.
4. Fan out the longer end of the shawl and pull it over across the chest area.
5. Pull it around the neck (not over) to the front.
6. Tidy up the loose edges a little and you're good to go.

*Try this look with a shawl that isn't too thick for a neat and clean-edge look.

TURBAN SIDE V WRAP ROUND LOOK

Here's an easy look (and our favourite) to try out if you feel like buying into the bludgeoning turban trend. Grab a shawl and try these steps out.

1. Again, partially fold in the edge of your shawl on one side and place the folded side on top of your head. Make sure that one side is longer than the other.

2. Secondly, make a sharp V at the front and a little to the side of your shawl and pin it so it stays in place.

3. Make a knot at the back of your neck with the two loose ends of the shawl.

4. Spread the longer side of the shawl and wrap it around your head. Tidy it up a little to your preference.

5. Bring both sides to the front for a more casual look. If you'd like a neat up do, just wrap and pin the loose ends of your shawl for the desired look.

6. Complete the look with a statement necklace if you like.

Aviation Interview

Dato' Albert Tan Sam Soon
National President
Malaysian Chinese Travel Association

As Managing Director of Malaysia Airports Holdings Berhad, Datuk Badlisham Ghazali is fast gaining recognition in the global aviation world. A speaker at the World Routes Strategy Summit in Chicago in 2014 and the 22nd Global Airport Development Conference in 2015, he is also Special Advisor to Airports Council International Asia-Pacific. He sits on the Boards of the international airports at Delhi, Hyderabad, Istanbul and Male.

This month, Datuk Badlisham speaks about the commitment of the Company to East Malaysia.

AIRPORT MD SPEAKS

"One of the first facilities I visited after I took up my position as the new Managing Director of Malaysia Airports was Kota Kinabalu International Airport, commonly known in aviation circles by its IATA call-sign of BKL.

"I was aware that this is the fastest-growing airport in Malaysia, but I was pleasantly surprised to hear that one industry-analyst reckoned it could be the most rapidly-expanding airport in the entire BIMP-EAGA region at that point in time! Geographically, Kota Kinabalu International Airport is our most easterly international gateway, and nearest to the Far East as well as the Australasia region.

"At present, there are more than one dozen airlines operating at KKIA, including Malaysia Airlines, MASWings, Air Asia, Asiana Airlines, Awair/Indonesia Air Asia, Air Asia Zest, Cebu Pacific Air, China Airlines, China Southern Airlines, Dragonair, Eastar Jet, Jin Air, Malindo Air, Royal Brunei Airlines, Shanghai Airlines, Silk Air and Spring Airlines. I am pleased to note that there has been a steady stream of airlines from South Korea, China and even the Philippines that have commenced new routes or increased existing frequencies into Kota Kinabalu, while carriers from Singapore, Indonesia, Brunei and peninsular Malaysia have been steady supporters of this fascinating destination. We are now looking at the possibility of more connections from North Asia and Indonesia as well.

"Apart from the magnificent international airport in Sabah's state capital, Malaysia Airports also operates facilities at Lahad Datu, Sandakan, Tawau, Kudat, Long Pasia and Semporna. These are an integral part of community life across Sabah; and we are proud to be a part of vital logistics and communications network of this great state."

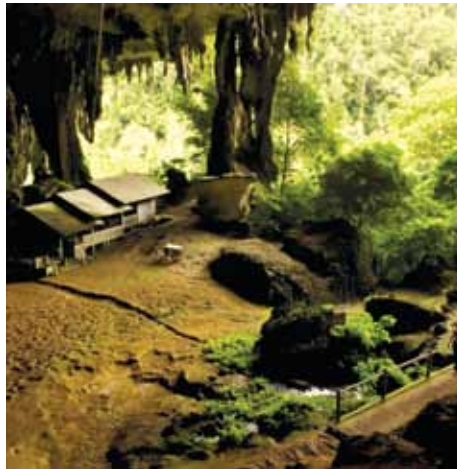

"Similarly, in Sarawak, we operate more than one dozen facilities in Bintulu, Limbang, Miri, Mulu, Bakalalan, Bario, Belaga, Kapit, Lawas, Long Akah, Long Banga, Long Lellang, Long Semado, Long Seridan, Marudi, Mukah and the state capital of Kuching. For local communities in many locations of Malaysia's largest state, the airport is the centre of communications, logistic and connection to the rest of the world.

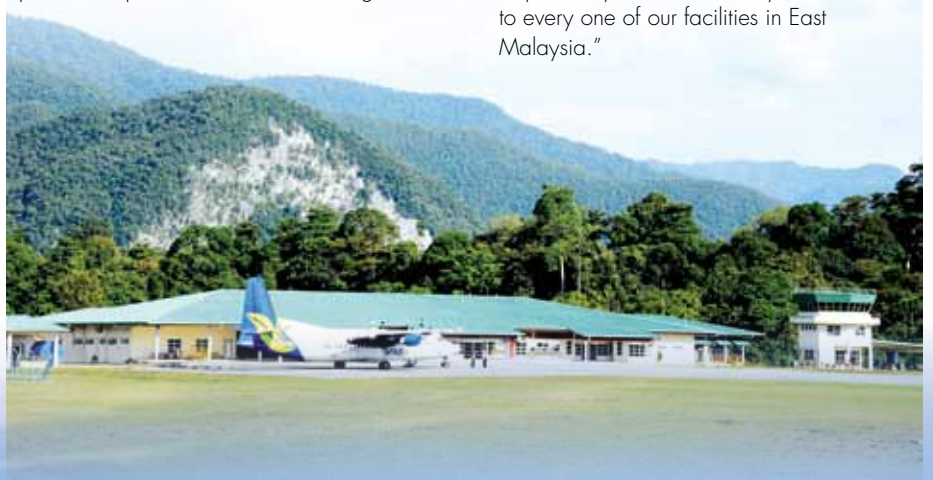

"I would describe Kuching International Airport as one of the 'untapped airport treasures' in Malaysia. With its strategic location on the legendary island of Borneo and its close proximity to Brunei and majors towns of the Indonesian archipelago, Kuching is a destination waiting to be discovered by the aviation and tourism industries! Malaysia Airports is committed to the best interests of the airport, the capital city and the success of the state of Sarawak.

"Apart from the states of Sabah and Sarawak, East Malaysia also includes the financial hub popularly called Labuan. To be precise, Labuan Island is the largest of seven within the Federal Territory of Labuan. Together with the six other smaller islands of Pulau Burung, Pulau Daat, Pulau Kuraman, Pulau Papan, Pulau Rusukan Kecil, and Pulau Rusukan Besar, this Federal Territory has a combined total area of 92 km². This collection of lovely islands lies 8 km off the coast of Borneo, in a strategic location on the northern edge of Brunei Bay facing the South China Sea, between Sabah and the nation of Brunei Darussalam. Labuan's airport can handle over 2 million passengers a year.

"Collectively, East Malaysia represents a major focus for Malaysia Airports in 2016. From tiny Short Take-Off & Landing ports (STOLports) in remote rural villages and landing facilities at popular resort destinations to busy domestic airports in commercial centres and international airhubs in capital cities, we have in East Malaysia what has been described as the widest range of airports that any airport-management company in the world is responsible for. Big or small, Malaysia Airports fully commits our very best efforts to every one of our facilities in East Malaysia."

Sarawak sees aviation growth

Air-travel in Malaysia's largest state is set to grow with recent developments

There was a distinct Sarawakian atmosphere in Hong Kong last month at the events surrounding the Official Signing of a Cooperation Agreement between the Sarawak Tourism Board and Hong Kong Airlines for a direct flight between Kuching and Hong Kong. Ethnic tribal music filled the air, and colourful Sarawakian art and craft helped create a festive and celebratory mood.

The large delegation from Sarawak included the Minister of Housing and Minister of Tourism of Sarawak Datuk Amar Abang Johari bin Tun Abang Haji Openg; Assistant Minister of Tourism Sarawak Datuk Talib Zulpilip and Datuk Gramong Juna, and members of various government departments such as the Chief Minister's Office, Ministry of Tourism, Sarawak Tourism Board, Sarawak Cultural Village, and the Sarawak Convention Bureau.

Also present were Malaysia Airports General Manager Marketing Mohamed Sallauddin Haji Mat Sah and Tourism Malaysia Hong Kong Director Norshamsida Abdul Rahman.

The agreement for Hong Kong Airlines to operate the Hong Kong-Kuching direct route was signed by STB Chief Executive Officer and Permanent Secretary to Sarawak's Tourism Ministry Datu Ik Pahon Joyik and Hong Kong Airlines Assistant Director of Commercial Michael Burke.

The signing ceremony marked the beginning of the process to establish the first direct link between Kuching and the Orient. Datuk Amar Abang Johari said the state government was pleased that the new route was being finally realised as the direct flight from Hong Kong to Kuching will increase connectivity between the two destinations. It would also enhance international connectivity for Sarawak. "It augurs well for the state", he added.

To help sustain the route, Datuk Amar Abang Johari said STB would support Hong Kong Airlines in terms of tourism packages as well as market promotion. Asserting that ecotourism is becoming the key trend of the global tourism industry, he said Sarawak has various products to offer to tourists from Hong Kong and other parts of the world.

Apart from the Signing Ceremony, a Mini Travel Mart was held after the official event. Sarawak also hosted a dinner themed 'Sarawak Night: Sarawak Welcomes You' at The Langham Hotel. Guest of Honour for the evening was the Sarawak's Chief Minister's wife, Datin Patinggi Dato Hajah Jamilah bt Haji Anu. The evening saw various cultural dances staged by performers from Sarawak Cultural Village, a fashion show, lucky draws and culture-related games specifically arranged for Hong Kong guests. The Sarawakian hosts also entertained guests to games involving the warrior dance, the maiden dance, blowpipe shooting and 'Alir-Alir'. After these sessions, all guests were invited to join in the 'joget', a traditional Malay dance.

Mohamed Sallauddin said that Hong Kong Airlines is expected to launch the inaugural Hong Kong-Kuching flight on April 26 using an Airbus A320, on a twice-weekly schedule. He added that the Signing Ceremony is a testament to the hard work put in over several years by the Sarawak Government, often in partnership with Malaysia Airports, to raise the profile of Kuching as a strategic destination of choice for airline route-developers.

One key step in this process was when a team from Sarawak Tourism and Malaysia

Airports flew to Manchester in 2012 to bid for the hosting of Routes Asia. The bid was successful, and for the first time in the history of Borneo, a major international aviation event was held on the legendary island when Routes Asia 2014 took place in Kuching. During the event, Sarawak Tourism Board hosted a lavish dinner for Hong Kong Airlines, during which time a strong and vivid presentation was held on the attributes and viability of Kuching and Sarawak as a great aviation destination.

"The development of Kuching as an airline destination is a strategic component in the successful implementation of the BIMPEAGA initiative", he said, explaining that he was referring to the Brunei Indonesia Malaysia Philippines-East Asean Growth Area, a sub-regional economic cooperation initiative in Southeast Asia. The BIMPEAGA initiative was launched in 1994 to spur economic development in the four countries' "focus areas" which, although geographically distant from their national capitals, are in strategic proximity to each other, in one of the world's most resource-rich regions. The BIMPEAGA initiative is market-driven and operates through a decentralised organisation structure involving the four governments and the private sector.

Star Chef dishes for GARUDA INDONESIA

This month, Garuda Indonesia introduces its new signature dishes created by world-renowned chefs for its First Class and Business Class passengers on selected flights, says General Manager for Malaysia, Ronald Lubantobing, explaining that the Star Chefs have been specially chosen to create entire menus based on the unique and diverse Indonesian traditional dishes found across the archipelago.

The first chef to be hosting the Garuda Indonesia's Star Chefs program is Will Meyrick, from the famed Sarong, Mamasan and Hujan Locale in Bali and E&O in Jakarta, who was named the 2012-2014 Hospitality Asia Platinum Award Master Chef for Asian Cuisine. The renowned 'Street Food Chef' will be presenting Garuda Indonesia's new signature dishes on the Denpasar-Sydney and Denpasar-Melbourne return flights this month.

For his collaboration with the national airline of Indonesia, Chef Will Meyrick will be taking contemporary Indonesian street food upscale with fine-dining experiences on board. The in-flight menu comprises "Tum bebek with ubud lawar jackfruit ferntip grated coconut and nasi kuning", "Ayam betutu served with long bean yellow coconut and peanut salad", and "Balinese chocolate torte with candied orange and coconut cream".

The Star Chefs Program is part of the airline's New Garuda Indonesia Experience, which was introduced to provide added value to its customers. Inspired by Indonesia's warm hospitality and rich diverse culture, this new service concept promises a unique and tangible experience of the five senses; sight, sound, taste, scent, and touch, at every stage of the journey.

The New Garuda Indonesia Experience service concept was launched as part of the airline's commitment as the national flag-carrier to maintain and preserve Indonesia's rich cultural heritage, and is in line with its continuous efforts to better serve its passengers. The service concept represents all of the best examples of Indonesian hospitality and cultural diversity.

By offering products and services based on Indonesian culture and hospitality, the local passengers travelling abroad can feel at home during their flights with Garuda Indonesia, while for foreign visitors, they can feel the hospitality and nuances that are uniquely Indonesian, even before they arrive in the country.

Ronald Lubantobing says Garuda Indonesia has three daily flights between Kuala Lumpur and Jakarta. For booking enquiries and reservations, call 03-2162 2811.

GOOD NIGHT • SWEET DREAM

“PUT MALAYSIA FIRST IN THE TRAVEL BUSINESS.”

An industry leader has a clear focus for growth.

Interview with
Dato' Albert Tan Sam Soon
National President
Malaysian Chinese Travel Association

“He is quite an innovator in the travel-industry of Malaysia”, says a colleague admiringly. “He is not afraid to try new things and break ground in different areas.” A statistics-oriented young travel-agent puts it more succinctly: “Dato’ Albert Tan has scored many ‘firsts’ in his career. Among other things, in 1997, he was the first Penang-based travel-operator to head a national tourism-organisation; in 2004 he became the first President of the Malaysian Inbound Tourism Association, and in 2015 he became the first person to be elected for a third time to head the Malaysian Chinese Travel Association.

A government official endorses these views. “Dato’ Albert Tan Sam Soon has really helped to organise the inbound tourism business in Malaysia into a formal structure with measurable goals and standards. He also stands tall among the outbound travel-agents as someone who strongly believes that the inbound tourism business is a priority for Malaysian companies. Personally, I think he brings a welcome balance to the local travel industry. I am glad he is still going strong at the age of 67!”

At a time of his life when many men would be content to rest on their laurels, why has this indefatigable veteran taken on the heavy responsibilities as President of the Malaysian Chinese Tourism Association – and for a third time, too? “I think the one factor that motivates me today is the same thing that has kept me going ever since I entered the travel industry decades ago – passion!” explains ‘Dato’ Albert’, as he is popularly known. “I am passionate about this business; and I am passionate about my country. ”

“I believe that the tourism business has an immediate impact on Malaysia in many unique ways. Other industries like manufacturing may also bring in revenue for the country, but only the travel business raises international understanding, goodwill and appreciation of different people and cultures. Only the travel business unites so many different categories of service-providers, too! In the MCTA, for example, we have tour-operators, travel-agents, hoteliers, restaurateurs, logistic-handlers, gift-shop owners and other stakeholders. It doesn’t matter if you’re an airline boss, a waitress, an outbound guide, a bus-operator or a hotel-tycoon – I believe that whatever role you have in the travel industry, you are an ambassador for Malaysia! We can only grow as we put Malaysia first in our endeavors.”

The ‘MCTA’ he refers to is the Malaysian Chinese Tourism Association that was established in 1992. Beginning in Kuala Lumpur, the organisation has expanded to other states with the formation of chapters in Johor, Perak, and Penang. Chapters in Sabah and Sarawak are also on the cards. Its founding- mission is to provide an industry- platform and an instrument of close collaboration amongst members in order to enhance the professional image of Malaysian Chinese companies and organisations in the tourism industry.

One of the association’s aims is to promote professional and ethical standards of conduct in the tourism industry. In its constant quest for excellence and to set an example to its members, MCTA achieved ISO 9001.2008 certification in 2013 for the provision of quality management and event services.

The MCTA is now one of the top five tourism associations in Malaysia with more than 650 members. To enhance the Association’s professional and international scope, MCTA has established long-term cooperation-relationships with many foreign tourism boards/ organizations, and works very closely with the Ministry Of Tourism and Tourism Malaysia in the promotion and development of Malaysian tourism both domestically internationally.

Its annual event, the Malaysia International Travel Mart (MITM Travel Fair) has gained increasing recognition as one of the most sought-after events for airlines, tour operators and national tourism organizations since it was started in 2001. MITM 2015 with a total of 60 exhibitors and 300 exhibition booths attracted 86,000 visitors and generated an estimated gross sale of about RM43 million. At the state level, MCTA chapters organise their own travel-fairs to promote and enhance the tourism industry in their respective states.

“Almost every foreign airline in Malaysia is taking an interest in the MITM, and the airlines also actively support the various other activities of the MCTA, including our Annual Dinner. In this era, airlines are an essential part of the domestic, regional and international tourism industry. At MCTA, we consider airlines as our vital partners in mutual success and prosperity. We are also pleased to note that Malaysia Airports is also increasing its interaction with us. We work together for the common good of everyone.”

As he concludes his explanation, it is clear that Dato’ Albert Tan is truly passionate that airlines and tourism-players will grow when they put Malaysia first in the travel-business.

Kathlyn Ursula D'Souza speaks to

JEFF NIEUWENHUIZEN

Healthy Living, Holistically

Where are you originally from and what was your hometown like?

I'm from Wollongong, Australia. What's it like? It's a beach city – I grew up on a beach, basically.

When did you arrive in Malaysia and what was your first impression?

I came last February. I just spent the last 16 years in Thailand, so I moved around quite a bit in Bangkok, Phuket ... so, Malaysia has some similarities to Thailand, but when I came to KL I actually thought it was quite like Singapore. It's green, nice ... I know the traffic sucks but it's not that bad compared to Bangkok because you get a lot of green space. Bangkok is just a huge concrete city.

What was the transition like moving from country to country? Do you ever get homesick?

Not really, because I've lived in West Australia so I'm sort of used to that. People have always asked me the difference between Thailand and Malaysia, and I think Thailand is an easier place to live because you know, things are cheap and it's very relaxed but I think Malaysia is a better place to work. It's much more like working in the West, it's much more similar.

What do you do for a living?

I originally trained years ago as a naturopath. So that's like complimentary medicine like herbal medicine, nutrition and different treatments. You do the same kind of basic education in science as medical doctors but you sort of steer away and you don't go into surgery or pharmaceutical stuff, it's more natural/lifestyle-herbal thing to manage health.

How did you get into this career?

I know quite a number of people who did it and it was quite interesting years ago, when I was looking for a career change. I thought I'd give a try. Basically, I enjoyed it and stayed on and finished the degree and kept going.

What was the turning point of your career and your secret to success?

I guess the turning point was when I changed from being a practitioner to delve into full-time management. I was running a very famous health resort in Thailand, with a medical programme. So I took on a management responsibility and a big change came and I decided to set up something new. I took a position with a hospital, to develop a huge wellness centre for them, a new concept.

What is it that you love about what you do? Any challenges?

There are challenges always [laughs], my engineer said, "If there's no problem, then your boss doesn't need you – you don't have a job." What I like about it is that we're seeing a big change now ... people are becoming more aware of their health and more aware of things that affect them, especially the younger generation.

When people ignore their health, and when there's a challenge, they run to the biggest building, the biggest hospital in town kind of thing, the doctor with the biggest reputation – they go for the safe bet. And what they miss and run past is the things that they can do for themselves, they miss all the factors that they've been subjected to that have created these problems for them.

So what I do, the centres that I run, focus on getting people connected back to their health, understanding what lifestyle things that they are doing wrong – diet, lifestyle, relationships, whatever it could be. We have a very holistic view of it, it's a matter of what you eat, whether you move and what kind of movement ... these things will affect your health in different ways. We pay attention to your relationships, your mood, your emotions because most people ignore them, especially in Asia. It tends to be pushed down, it's an Asian culture, to suppress your emotions. You suppress stuff and that's not nice, as that leads to bottling things in and that leads to detriments in health, as it affects the biochemistry of your body.

What I enjoy is to help wake people up, to help them realise all these other opportunities that can help them manage their own health in a very holistic manner. When you go for conventional medical ways, you tend to cure the symptoms quickly but we aim to reverse the cause instead of bypassing it.

Tell us about your family.

I'm married, and I've got three kids. At the moment, they're all still in Thailand as they all go to school there, and my son is in Australia. The entire family is a bit spread out now, but I go several times a month to see them and have long weekends with them or Skype with them. Technology is great.

Have you tried any of the local food in Malaysia? Do you have any favourites?

Actually, what I am enjoying is all the different food you can get here. You get Malay, Chinese and Indian food. Plus, a mixture of everything else that you can access. I enjoy having a variety of stuff to go for, so that's a big change. The options here are fantastic.

Any favourite holiday destinations in Malaysia so far?

I've got to find them; I've been working too much. The last time I had a holiday here was about years ago, when I was backpacking to Penang and Cameron Highlands, and that was nice. It's all changed now, but I'd like to get back to Cameron Highlands because I enjoyed it a lot. I'm really looking forward to getting across to East Malaysia for diving.

What is your current project and what is your vision for your current company?

The reason why I came here was that the company that I work for, was moving into the healthcare area. They've been involved in hospitals and pharmaceutical lines before but they wanted to bring this new style of medicine to Malaysia, which is growing big – functional medicine – which is really what I've been describing all along, where they look deeper into the body and managing cause and factors. Medical doctors are trained to work in a functional manner, how to approach the problem differently and in turn provide much better healthcare.

We opened our first functional medicine centre in Malaysia, called Elements Wellness. Beyond that, we're looking to integrating this into a lot of different areas. We've already got a gym at the centre, because obviously exercise is a key part of being well or getting well. Exercise is the best possible drug you can take, in a way. We're also delving into the pharmaceutical line, and we're developing more healthy cuisines, and we are just about to launch healthy smoothies in one of our restaurants.

So we're sort of moving into not only preaching but practice as well. We're aiming to look at a more complete service, to get people happier, fitter and healthier. That's what our company is about, that's what we do.

What is your advice to those who would love to pursue your career line or take the plunge into the unknown?

Learn as much as you can about everything. Across my career of being involved with spas, alternative medicine and practitioners of every kind – medical doctors, specialists, chiropractors, energy healers or psychic experts – I've dealt with a million types of people. To me, you learn a lot from everybody. It's all about integrating stuff that you normally cannot find together, to just being able to understand each other and have them work together. Help make a system where it will all make sense to a client. They need good advice, but they also need help in implementing it. It's not about the business, it's about the patient.

BY KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

Most hotels boast about their ability to making you feel at home, but MiCasa All Suite Hotel Kuala Lumpur is the epitome, aptly named after it as well. Part of KL's charm is the soaring skyscrapers that we have come to adore and admire, and at times we do wish we could have a bit of greenery. At MiCasa, however, you can have the best of both worlds. PACIFIC REGENCY HOTEL SUITES

Kuala Lumpur's Classic City Hotel

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

KH Tower, Jalan Punchak, Off Jalan P. Ramlee,
50250 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia
+60 3-2332 7777

Tucked among the hidden gems around the Bukit Nanas Forest Reserve, off Jalan P. Ramlee, Pacific Regency Hotel Suites is in the heart of the commercial and lifestyle district of Kuala Lumpur. Pacific Regency Hotel Suites has definitely made its mark in being one of Kuala Lumpur's classic city hotels. Located in the stunningly convenient area of the Golden Triangle, the hotel boasts a panoramic view featuring the KL Tower as its backdrop. A union of cosmopolitan charms and time-honoured traditions, Pacific Regency welcomes its guests with a wide range of lifestyle and business facilities.

The hotel is in Jalan Punchak, a strategic location neighbouring major shopping malls like Pavilion Kuala Lumpur and Suria KLCC, making it suitable for guests to venture on foot or by a short distance in a cab. There are multiple LRT stations located conveniently near the hotel as well.

Upon arriving at the tower's 7th floor, one would be stunned by the gorgeous contemporary art pieces and marble influence that adorn the hotel's reception area. The concept of the hotel has an opulent and modern aura that is also warm and inviting.

The hotel has two towers – the first tower, Pacific, is where the executive and superior room types are and also leads to the pool and Luna Chill Out Bar (a famous bar in Kuala Lumpur that offers a gorgeous view of the city's skyline), while the other tower, Premier, features a more refined and luxurious set of premier rooms. Though the hotel has been around for quite awhile, the rooms are taken care of impeccably with a timeless décor and design and a wonderfully warm setting in all rooms.

As the hotel adopts a somewhat serviced residence concept, the suites here are undeniably spacious. There is a sizeable fridge, electric stove and a sink in case you feel like cooking, a large king-sized bed complete with luxurious sheets, a sizeable working desk and even a tiny dining area that looks over the Golden Triangle district. What really caught our attention was the bathroom – white marble everywhere, spacious and complete with a rain shower and a large deep bathtub.

There are plenty of options when it comes to food here. Soi23 Restaurant is a Thai fusion restaurant on the 23rd floor of the tower. The breakfast buffet is usually served here with a wide variety of local and international choices.

Cristallo Di Luna is an opulent non-smoking fine dining restaurant that serves a fusion of French-Italian food and favoured for romantic diners. The view from Cristallo of the city is stunning - the perfect setting for a romantic dinner date. The chef cooks up an impeccable dish of Pan Seared Cod on a bed of buttery risotto that had patrons coming back for more. On our visit, the codfish was pan-seared perfectly and it also helped that you could taste the freshness of the fish. The risotto was also cooked well and could almost melt in our mouths. The crème brulee topped with a scoop of Haagen Dazs's Macadamia Brittle is also highly favoured by regular customers here - smooth, creamy and decadent with every spoonful.

For guests who would prefer freshly baked buttery croissants and other beautifully crafted pastries, Geo Café has all your pastry needs complete with a coffee bar to pair your pastries with.

Guests can also opt to venture out of the hotel to popular shopping and cultural districts nearby like Chinatown, Central Market and the famous Jalan Alor for some lip-smacking good seafood within walking distance or a short cab ride.

Whether it is for leisure or business, the Pacific Regency Hotel Suites aims to exceed expectations in all manner of hospitality as possible. This Valentine's,

WWF-Malaysia representatives and MBPJ representatives promoting the Earth Hour 2016 Night walk

MAJLIS BANDARAYA PETALING JAYA INCREASES ITS GREEN EFFORTS LEADING UP TO EARTH HOUR 2016

After winning the inaugural title of Malaysia's National Earth Hour Capital in the Earth Hour City Challenge (EHCC) 2015, Petaling Jaya will commemorate Earth Hour for the second time this year on March 19 between 8.30 pm and 9.30 pm. The Petaling Jaya City Council or Majlis Bandaraya Petaling Jaya (MBPJ) and WWF-Malaysia will host the Earth Hour 2016 Night Walk at Padang Timur, Petaling Jaya. Everyone is invited to register for the walk at www.pandashop.my/earthhour2016, with all proceeds to be channelled to WWF-Malaysia's conservation efforts.

Petaling Jaya deputy mayor, Tuan Johary Anuar, said, "Our previous EHCC global recognition has motivated us to increase our green efforts. Participating in the challenge for the second year emphasises our long-term commitment to make Petaling Jaya a sustainable city. We shall continue to educate our residents and inculcate environmentally-friendly habits among them so that they can progress with us in caring for their neighbourhood."

Embracing the notion of going beyond the hour, MBPJ has addressed various impacts and threats posed by climate change in the Petaling Jaya Sustainable 2030 Plan of Strategies.

"We implemented the carbon management plan focusing on energy efficiency for MPBJ's building and aim to reduce emissions related to electricity, fuel, water and waste consumption by 25% over the next five years. We are also extending the length of free public transport services for Petaling Jaya residents through the development of a sustainable development transport master plan," said Johary.

The city facilitated the process of transforming biodegradable waste into cooking gas as part of its Waste to Wealth programme, a small-scale renewable energy project. In addition, energy efficiency projects were implemented, with LED public lighting facilities set up around the city in stages.

"Petaling Jaya has been selected as a pilot city project under the pioneer Low Carbon City Framework facilitated by Malaysia's Ministry of Energy, Green Technology and Water as well as Malaysia Green Technology Corporation. As part of this programme, MBPJ will share information and expertise to lead the way for other cities and municipalities in Malaysia. Petaling Jaya is definitely a leading example of a sustainable city," said Dr Sundari Ramakrishna, WWF-Malaysia's Conservation Director.

Earth Hour is a global environmental movement initiated by WWF to lead the transition towards a climate-friendly future. Individuals, communities and businesses are invited to turn off their lights for an hour at 8.30pm on Saturday, March 19, in support of environmentally sustainable action. Earth Hour aims to bring everyone together, and inspire the Malaysian public to continue to demonstrate their concern about climate change by conserving and using energy efficiently as well as generally avoiding wasteful consumption.

Malaysia has endured major changes in temperature, precipitation, wind patterns and other impacts of a changing climate. In Penang, Kota Kinabalu, Selangor and the East Coast, there have been more extreme flooding, and recently the Karak Highway faced a major landslide after heavy rains. The slash-and-burn method of clearing land in Indonesia has also contributed to the increasingly severe local climate change. All this has negatively impacted our health, wellbeing, livelihoods and also economic activities.

"These events are a strong call for us to protect and conserve nature and biodiversity as part of our developmental agenda at all levels: sub-national, national and international. We need to put sustainability at the core of our long-term plans. WWF-Malaysia commends MBPJ for taking steps to build a more sustainable and brighter future, and we hope that other city councils will emulate their exemplary leadership," said Sundari.

MPBJ bagged the silver Green Apple Award in June 2013 at the National Self Build and Renovation Centre, Swindon, London and the Green World Ambassador 2014 last November at London's House of Parliament for its Assessment Rebate Scheme For Environmentally Friendly Household Programme.

Sundari concluded by encouraging everyone to take part in the Earth Hour 2016 Night Walk in Petaling Jaya by registering at www.pandashop.my/earthhour2016. The registration fee is RM65 per person. Earth Hour 2016 Night Walk participants will receive a walk pack comprising a 100% cotton, eco-friendly Earth Hour 2016 T-shirt and a medal. Medals will only be distributed to participants who complete the walk at the end of the walk.

These medals are made from recycled remnant wood and Forest Stewardship Council (FSC)-certified wood veneers. The FSC is an independent non-governmental, not-for-profit organisation established to promote the responsible management of the world's forests. FSC-certified products come from forests that are responsibly managed to meet social, economic and environmental needs.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

Do you want to LASH OUT?

BY KATHLYN URSULA D'SOUZA

If women were given the option of choosing just one makeup product to use for the rest of their lives, we are certain that it would be mascara. After all, it is said time and time again that if your lashes look great, you're all set. Eyes are the most important attribute a girl can work with, followed by the lips (unless you're wearing really red lipstick, then gazes often wander to your lips), so it's only natural that women would want to wake up with fantastic lashes adorning their peepers. Let's face it – we simply don't have the time, nor the will, to put on fake eyelashes every day, so it isn't a surprise that lash extensions are steadily becoming a thing.

They come in different designs and are high-maintenance, and you've got a whole list of rules to follow if you'd like to keep them in tiptop shape.

So if you'd like to venture into Lash Land, here's what you must know:

The common types of lash extensions:

There are three types of lash extensions: synthetic, silk and mink. Size availability ranges from 6mm to 17mm. Once selected, the lashes are applied one at a time using a specially formulated, semi-permanent glue that will not irritate the eye nor damage the natural lash. However, since allergic reactions are possible, there are different types of glue based on one's sensitivity.

Time taken to apply them:

Applying a full set of lashes takes about two hours, and can be maintained year-round with touch-ups recommended every three to four weeks. A half set of lashes are an economical alternative to achieve a similarly dramatic effect, applied as filler to thicken natural lashes, or applied outward from the eye for a specialised look. Everyone has different lashes, and depending on the condition of your own natural lashes, lash extensions can only go a certain length or thickness. (This is to ensure that your own lashes remain healthy.)

The glue:

Since your eyes are shut the whole time lash extensions are being applied, no glue will ever get into your eyes. To avoid any irritation, however, the first safety precaution you can take is to be sure that the glue is safe for your eyes and doesn't contain anything that can harm them, like formaldehyde. Shipping glues across the world often leads to a buildup of formaldehyde by the time they reach the salon.

Additionally, it's important to understand the difference between an allergic reaction and an infection. A licensed and experienced lash technician will not let an infection occur, but if you're allergic to the glue, you're still going to be allergic – this doesn't mean the glue is inherently harmful.

Blindness:

There is no risk of blindness. Your technician should be trained properly to apply the adhesive and lashes in a way that is completely harmless. Your eyes are closed the entire time of the procedure. No matter how bad an allergic reaction you may get, you will never go blind. The worst-case scenario is that you need to go to the eye doctor to get specific eye drops to treat an allergic reaction.

If you cry:

If you experience any burning or discomfort during the procedure, causing your eyes to tear or making you cry, this is a huge red flag and you should certainly speak up. You may need to have your technician change the glue. Getting lash extensions should be a completely pain-free experience.

Touch-ups:

Lash extensions last through a full growth cycle of natural eyelashes, typically six to eight weeks. That said, because each person's lash growth is somewhat variable (just hair growth), I suggest light lash maintenance every three to four weeks to maintain a full look.

When extensions fall out:

Since each lash extension is attached to a single eyelash, they will fall out naturally along with the natural growth cycle of each lash. We recommend a touch-up every three to four weeks. When an inexperienced professional applies lashes, he or she often applies one synthetic lash to three to four natural lashes, causing clumps or the lash to break and fall out. In addition, your lashes might fall out if you pick at them or try to pull them out yourself, which is a big no-no. But if you avoid those two problems, your lashes should stay intact.

What to avoid:

Keep water away from your lashes for the first 12 to 24 hours after application or touch-ups. Water can weaken the adhesive before it is set and cause lashes to fall off. The after-care varies depending on the glue used. For instance, with glue for sensitive eyes, oil-based products or makeup removers around the eye area are not recommended. Using water-proof mascara on the extensions is not recommended for any type of glue, as it is hard to remove and can actually pull off the lashes prematurely when trying to take it off.

Mascara on top of extensions:

If you plan to wear mascara in addition to the extensions, only use it on the tips of the extensions and with a very light hand. This will be enough to give your eyes that "pop" along with the extensions. Using mascara at the base of the extensions will get very clumpy.

Damage:

The biggest myth is that lash extensions ruin your own lashes. They do not. If applied correctly and properly, they are safe and do not ruin the health of your natural lashes. Be sure not to rub your eyes or tug or pull on the extensions because this can cause lash loss and even damage to your natural lashes. If lashes are applied properly and to each individual lash, they won't fall out.

HIKING in the KLANG VALLEY

Top trails to try

BY NADHIRAH BADARDIN

Going out for a nature hike is not only a dirt cheap way to keep fit, but it also releases all the necessary endorphins you need to de-stress your mind and body. Malaysia is home to some magnificent tropical havens, with lush rainforests, immaculate beaches and dramatic mountains. With all these driving factors, we're amazed that we haven't done this sooner. Thinking of hiking but not sure where to find a trail in the city? Here's a list of trails to try around Klang Valley:

BROGA HILL

Located between the borders of Selangor and Negeri Sembilan is a small town situated 50 km from the city centre of Kuala Lumpur called Broga. Nowadays, the popularity of Broga is largely associated with Broga Hill. For those who like outdoor activities, Broga Hill is a great destination for hiking. The appeal factor of hiking up to the peak is the panoramic view of the landscape. Lush valleys of green rainforest and a few towns can be seen on a clear day, together with the backdrop of several mountains from a distance. The hike itself is relatively an easy one, taking 20 to 45 minutes to reach the top, depending on your fitness level. There are a few steep parts, but nothing too hard, and the trails are clearly marked, making it easy for you to steer your way to a magnificent view.

Broga Hill, B34 43500 Semenyih, Selangor, Malaysia

FRIM, CANOPY WALKWAY

Forest Research Institute Malaysia or commonly known as FRIM is probably one of Klang Valley's best-kept secrets. Besides being a centre for forest-based research and education, FRIM also opens its doors to visitors who want to experience a walk through a Malaysian tropical rainforest, without going too far from the city. These trails include plantations, wetlands and hills among others, and most of these paths and the nature that surround them have been there for over 80 years. The highlight of FRIM that no visitor should miss is its canopy walkway – a 150-metre long walkway suspended from trees, 30 metres above ground level. This walkway was originally built for researchers and scientists to study the flora and fauna more efficiently. However, the walkway is also open for visitors to try out.

Jalan Frim, Kepong, 52109 Kuala Lumpur, Selangor, Malaysia

KEMENSAH FOREST ON EAST TABUR

Kemensah forest is located just outside the city and has spectacular rewards that await every hiker at the end of their hike - two gorgeous waterfalls and a dreamy view of Kuala Lumpur from afar. Though the Kemensah forest-hiking trail isn't the easiest of the two mentioned above, it's definitely the more untouched of the two as it isn't as popular. Sometimes, you might bump into a wandering ATV group or two but that's alright, just jump out of the way and continue hiking upwards. If you ask me, the 3-hour hike was not as challenging as I had expected but definitely doable. Some parts maybe a little steep and you may feel like giving up at some point, but trust me when I say that the waterfall is a sight not to be missed.

Ulu Klang, Selangor, Kampung Kemensah, 68000, Malaysia
