AMBER CHIA

BEYOND BEAUTY

BY ROSHINEE MOOKAIAH

PHOTOGRAPHER : AMIR YASIN
HAIR AND MAKEUP : DESMOND YOI & PINKY CHIA
VENUE : AMBER CHIA ACADEMY

Coming from humble beginnings, Amber Chia's journey to being the supermodel that she is today is a testament to her hard work and perseverance. At the age of 17, she moved to Kuala Lumpur with only RM300 in her pocket. However, within a few years, she would hold the record of being the first Asian model for the worldwide 2004 Guess Watches campaign before being selected by Victoria Beckham to walk down the prestigious New York Fashion Week. She has since expanded her career as an actor, brand ambassador and more recently as an entrepreneur upon the establishment of the Amber Chia Academy. Fresh off the photo shoot for KL Lifestyle, Amber sits with us to reflect on her supermodel journey.

DRESS: LOVE, BONITO

How did you decide on pursuing professional modelling?

When I was young, I always admired the girls I saw on my television or magazines and I hoped that I could be as beautiful as them. It was a childhood dream, and upon learning more about modelling as I grew up, I started to join more competitions and even submitted my photos to be featured in the newspapers. I was pretty lucky because every time I joined a competition, I tended to be awarded Miss Photogenic. Plus, each of my photo submission would get accepted and it was encouraging to see my photo appear in the newspapers too. These experiences were what made me more confident about my abilities to pursue and succeed in this industry.

You left Tawau, Sabah to pursue a modelling career in Kuala Lumpur. Tell us more about this transition.

I understood early on that the city would be best for me to start my modelling career, and Kuala Lumpur (KL) presented a lot of opportunities for me back then. I moved to KL at the age of 17, and upon moving here, it dawned on me that things were not as I had expected them to be. It was a very competitive environment, and I initially faced a lot of rejections. I only got my first show after attending 30 to 40 casting sessions.

You have endured a lot of struggles, but you have since made a name as a supermodel and the principal of your own academy. What is the secret to your success?

I truly believe in the saying, 'Never try, never know'. Before I became the 'Amber Chia', I was just another ordinary model. I joined so many pageants and competitions early on, and even though I did not win all of them, I pushed on anyways. In 2004, I had a big turning point when I was appointed as the model for the worldwide Guess Watches campaign. I received recognition as an international model and it presented me with a lot of opportunities. That was how Amber Chia became known to everyone. It is very important to keep striving and not be disheartened by failures, because it is these experiences that will make you want to succeed even more.

You mentioned the 2004 Guess Watches campaign. How did it feel like to triumph by being their first Asian model?

It just asserted my aforementioned philosophy that you have to be brave enough to try something new. Furthermore, it showed to me that nothing was impossible with the right mindset and patience.

Who would you say was your biggest source of inspiration back then?

As there were no schools back then for modelling, I had to look to the people in television and magazines for my source of inspiration and guidance. However, when I moved to KL, there was a girl called Ling Tan who became the first Malaysian model to move to New York and she would go on to perform really well there. When I first heard her story, I was immediately motivated to do better. Ling Tan had a very oriental aesthetic to her, and this distinction was greatly valued in New York, though it was not necessarily appreciated the same way in other countries. It proved to me that beauty really is subjective. During my first few years in Malaysia, I could not get a lot of jobs because I was considered as not having the classic looks of a 'pretty girl'. Similar to Ling's experiences, it was only when I tried out for the international campaign that I was recognised as I emerged victorious in the Guess model search.

You were personally selected by Victoria Beckham to represent her fashion line at the prestigious New York Fashion Week back in 2009. Describe that experience for us.

It was a great experience! I was in New York for 1 ½ years, and I was eventually chosen to do 11 shows there, inclusive of the show for Victoria Beckham. If Kuala Lumpur had a competitive scene, well New York presented a more extreme scenario. There were a couple thousands of girls that attended these casting sessions, and among them were a lot of Chinese, Japanese and Korean girls who were very tall. I would consider myself one of the shorter models there, however, I am grateful that it did not hinder me. Luckily for me, the designers at NY Fashion Week were more concerned with the way the clothes were being carried by the models, instead of being fixated on their height. In fact, there was one show in which I was chosen to be the opening girl because I was the shortest one there, so yes, it worked out well in the end.

You are also the principal of your own modelling and beauty school. What made you want to start the Amber Chia Academy?

When I was struggling, I wished I had some guidance from others. So, I developed this dream that I would like to open an academy to help others, when I had the resources to do so. Seven years ago, I decided to kick-start this effort and made it into a reality because I had a lot of people coming up to me for tips constantly. I realised that I was not able to answer all their questions nor guide them one by one, and that is what this academy seeks to address. I am glad that after all these years, we have been able to change the landscape of the local modelling industry and more importantly, change its perception among Malaysians. Back in 1999, when I just started out, my parents disagreed with me because they viewed the modelling/entertainment industry negatively. There was an assumption that it was an unstable career which could not be sustained for the long term. I am glad to say that now after all the years of effort by the Academy, we have altered that misconception and instead proved that it is indeed sustainable.

“ I am glad to say that now after all the years of effort by the Academy, we have altered that misconception and instead proved that it is indeed sustainable. ”

What are the biggest challenges that you have faced in this line of work?

The challenges I have faced have now become valuable life experiences for me. I recall the times when I did not even have a single cent to eat or get back home after a casting session. Luckily for me, I bumped into someone nice who offered me RM10 for me to get a bus/taxi ride back home.

When I just started out, I was quite inexperienced and learned as I went along to more castings. For example, I remember when I was still unable to put on proper makeup so people would laugh at me. There was one particular casting session where the people in charge looked at me and questioned if I was even a model. They said, "Why do you look like you are from the (Chinese) opera?". But then, if I did not put on makeup, I would be told off for "not respecting the organiser". I have taken all of this in my stride, learned from it and endeavoured to do better. Going back to the example, due to my makeup inexperience, I would later enrol in a makeup school, and upon completing it, my makeup skills became so much better (more so than the rest because I learned from professionals!).

Most people assume models lead very glamorous lives, yet as evident by your experiences, so much more happens beyond the runway. Do share your thoughts on this misconception.

I shared the same misconception before I pursued this career. A lot of people do not realise that there is a lot of preparation that has to be done beforehand. When you see a model on the runway for even 10 seconds, you may not realise that she has been preparing for this for days. Models have to undergo casting sessions, fittings, hair and makeup, all of which take a up a lot of hours. I have students in my academy who also assume that being a model would automatically amount to a glamorous lifestyle, so I always have to remind them that being a supermodel is not something that can be achieved in a day. It has taken me 19 years to reach the stage I am today, so yes, I can safely say that there is a lot of hard work and dedication that is demanded from this job, which is something most people overlook.

Proudest moment of your career?

The moment I stepped on a runway for the first time. I am very proud of that moment because it took a lot of years for me to get there, and it really was a dream come true. Another moment would be when I won the international title out of participants from 63 countries to become Guess Watches model. I realised then that we should never judge our abilities and limit ourselves doing from bigger things.

What are your plans for 2017?

In terms of the academy, we are currently in the works of taking it up to another level as it is our goal for it to obtain the college status in the future. We have just finished renovations so I am hoping that we would be able to offer more classes and workshops soon enough.

I am also hoping that I would be able to spend more quality time with my family. I am still trying for a baby girl but for now, I would like to enjoy more moments with my son who has just started Primary 1.

What can we expect from Amber Chia in the future?

I always tell those around me that when I go to work, I still enjoy my job even after two decades. Even if I am 80 years old, and someone says I need to use a cane to get to work, I would still go for it because I am very passionate about what I do. I will still be very proud to be on that runway, even after 50 years or more. I do not see myself retiring any time soon. Of course, my priority is to my family and the academy, but I would continue to do what I love to do as long as I can.

How do you feel about this year being your year (the year of the rooster?)

First of all I wish all the readers out there happy Chinese new year and stay healthy always, without health everything would be meaningless. I hope that in this year of Rooster, my fashion & beauty academy - Amber Chia Academy will do even better this year and continue to help those with a dream in the fashion & beauty industry. Lastly, I would like to take this opportunity to share my favorite quote 'Never try never know', it is better to fail than to regret not trying.

A FRALENTINE'S DAY

"A friend is one that knows you as you are, understands where you have been, accepts what you have become, and still, gently allows you to grow."

-William Shakespeare

BY HIRANMAYIL AWLI MOHANAN

There are various kinds of love in this world; love for your parents, love for your spouse or other halves, and love for your friends. Although everyday should be Valentine's Day, you could take it as a fun excuse to show your friends you care and that you have them in your thoughts. Here are some ideas for different ways to celebrate Valentine's Day with friends. I hope they inspire you to pave your own unique experience.

ANNUAL MOVIE DATE WITH YOUR FRIENDS ON VALENTINE'S DAY

My friends and I used to get together every February 14th to see a movie at one of our homes. What started as an excuse to bond (as we were single) has become a much awaited annual tradition. If you do not feel like heading out to watch a movie at the cinema, you can always stay home with your friends with a bottle of wine and a box of pizza while binging on some great TV series such as an old favourite, 'FRIENDS' or Grey's Anatomy. Binging with friends is more amusing than doing it alone.

GIVE BACK ON VALENTINE'S DAY

Okay, I know some of you are thinking that it is an absurd idea on Valentine's Day but humour me. Since Valentine's Day is all about the celebration of love, why not do something significant with your friends, like spread the love to those in need? You could call up a local soup kitchen or community centre to give back to the community. Apart from that, volunteering is a pleasant way to meet new friends or to bond with the ones you have. Make it a tradition (so much better than flowers and candy). This is a particularly good idea if your friend has personal experience with a certain disease or cause. It shows your friend you are aware of what is close to their heart, and that you care about the things important to them.

HOST GAME NIGHT

Everybody loves a good games night. It is probably the only fitting time to unleash the competitive kid in you. Break the norm by inviting a bunch of friends and their partners for a game night. Whip out your collection of Jenga, Monopoly or Twister with a side of wine and bruschetta. Believe me when I say that you will have the time of your life. Fill this Valentine's with love and laughter amongst friends. There's nothing quite like it.

HOST A VALENTINE'S DAY DINNER PARTY WITH FRIENDS

Dinner parties are great when you have a large group of friends and Valentine's Day is the perfect time to get your single and coupled up friends to congregate. Some couples may skip Valentine's Day, which works in your favour. Others on the other hand, some couples may want to pop in by you before heading out for a night on their own which is perfectly okay. Your single friends, meanwhile, will absolutely appreciate the opportunity to hang out and have fun on a day where they might be feeling especially lonely. Make it a potluck dinner and have everyone bring a fare to pass in the theme of Valentine's Day, such as all heart-shaped items or everything in the colours of red and pink (because why not?).

MAKE IT A PAMPERING VALENTINE'S DAY PARTY

This idea will especially be appreciated by girls. Forget your man and focus on your girlfriends this Valentine's Day with a Galentine's Day celebration (Good+Valentine=Galentine). Make your night all about pampering your body and nurturing your soul. This is especially important if you and your gal pals are in need of some R&R which is likely the case when you are an on-the-go cosmopolitan. Make your own face masks, bring out your nail kit, a bottle of wine and prepare a tub of ice cream with a couple of spoons and voila, you have yourself a cosy pampering session. Alternatively, you might want to check if a local spa can come to you. Home spa parties are one way to indulge in the comfort of your home. Treat your friends or have everyone chip in for the cost, and then enjoy.

CHINESE HOROSCOPE 2017

What to expect in the Year of the Fire Rooster

BY JACQUELINE BENITA PAUL

According to the Chinese calendar, 2017 is the year of the Rooster because it appears that the Rooster is the tenth animal on the zodiac. Each year is related to an animal sign according to a 12-year cycle. Years of the Rooster include 1933, 1945, 1957, 1969, 1981, 1993, 2005, 2017 and 2029.

RAT

You will be blessed by three auspicious stars in the year, namely Tianxi, Dijie and Taiyin, which will make the year not too bad. The overall luck in wealth will be neither good nor bad. Despite the fact of destructing Tai Sui, you will be blessed by three auspicious stars and you can make both ends meet, thus will not suffer serious financial loss.

OX

Those born in the Year of the Ox will enjoy opportunities in academics, their career, romance and travel. For those who are single, it's a good time to meet a new romantic partner, while marriage or pregnancies are possible for those already in love.

TIGER

Tigers are looking at a good year ahead, but only if they stay determined and focused on their commitments. There will be opportunities for love and travel, but there is also a risk of financial loss through impulse investments.

RABBIT

Rabbit-born people are set to have a good year in romance, but their outlook for wealth, health and career isn't so great. Take great care in making risky investments, donate blood, or help out the sick, and be wary of changes in your workplace to fend off the possible bad luck you might encounter this year.

DRAGON

It's looking to be a good year for Dragons, who are set to maintain peaceful personal relationships, as well as receive an increase in income and good career opportunities. Dragons should be cautious about their health, though, as a recurring minor illness may pose a greater threat.

SNAKE

The Year of the Rooster will prove to be a good year for Snakes if they prioritise and plan well. If not, they may have bad luck in terms of finances, health, and career – don't spend beyond your means and be open to change. Snakes will, however, have much good luck in romance, as single Snakes will have many prospects and could even meet the right one next year.

HORSE

Horses will be very busy this year, which won't give them much time to enjoy life. The year may bring conflict to romantic relationships and the Horse should be wary of health concerns too. Financially, work-related opportunities may arise, but Horses will also have to spend money to help a family member in need.

SHEEP

Sheep will have their hands full with social events this 2017, which may be good for those who are single, but could lead to extra-marital affairs for those who aren't. In terms of money and career, there are opportunities for increases in income, but Sheep will also encounter unexpected problems at work, which will lead to stress. Remember to take some time off work to avoid any health issues.

MONKEY

2017 will be a steady year for Monkeys, who can expect to have an active social life and stable income. Be patient and make practical decisions when it comes to your career and focus on paying off debts and saving for the future.

ROOSTER

In their own year sign, Roosters can expect promotions at their place of work, so it wouldn't be wise to switch companies just yet. While there will be some financial gain for Roosters, they should be conscious of spending on things that aren't valuable.

DOG

When it comes to relationships, Dogs will have great luck meeting new people. Work relationships will also flourish, as the Dog will meet new people who could eventually benefit him in the future.

BOAR

Boars won't have a very good year, but 2017 will be much improved compared to 2016, especially as the year ends. In the Year of the Rooster, Boars will have difficulty in romance – there are possibilities of meeting new people, though Boars will have a hard time making a match. Boars will also be prone to illness next year and will suffer some sort of digestive disorder.

Hiranmayii Awli speaks to

DARREN TEH

Meet Darren Teh, the lead singer and guitarist of pop-punk band, An Honest Mistake. Trained English teacher by day, and musician by night, he brings us music we can bob our head to with the intent of revolutionizing the music industry.

Tell us a bit about yourself.

I'm Darren, the lead singer and guitarist of pop-punk band, An Honest Mistake. I'm a trained English teacher and taught English for 6 years in a prestigious university. I also organise gigs and provide a platform for young bands to showcase and hone their craft. To stay healthy, I play basketball and frequent the gym. I've never liked dogs until a beautiful Schnauzer-Terrier appeared in front of my house in 2009; I took it in and she's been with me since. I still have my soft toys from when I was a kid, and they're all named.

How did you get into the music line?

I started playing music when I was 14 but I really got into it when I was about 16. My brother was in a popular band in Malaysia and I used to follow him to his shows. That was how I first got introduced to the amazing music scene that we have here in Malaysia. Soon after that, I took music a bit more seriously and joined a band when I turned 18. Never regretted a day of it.

If you could pick one moment as the highlight of your musical career, what would it be?

July 2016. We played at the Ho Hai Yan Gongliao Rock Festival in Taiwan. It was a massive rock music fest by the beach with over 30k people rocking out with us and a few more bands from Asia. It was amazing, seeing everyone responding to our music. Plus, the excellent treatment on stage. The sound was great. The lights were great. It was perfect.

Well, that and also playing in Korea and going back to our 2nd home for the 9th time, the Philippines last year. Not forgetting signing to Universal Music Malaysia as our record label.

One single moment... is just way too hard to choose. Probably one giant moment that lasted 8 years since we began in 2008.

Tell us a little bit about your upcoming musical projects.

We're releasing another single in the first quarter of the year and then releasing a remix album called 'An Honest Mixtape' featuring some of the top electronic music producers in Malaysia and in the region. We're definitely working on another album for sure.

What does your daily diet consist of?

A lot of meat and vegetables. I try to eat as healthy as I can but we're in Malaysia and there's just way too much good food waiting to be devoured. At the moment, I'm on a 'liquid diet'; one of those meal replacement protein shake-type things. I want to have a go at it to see if it really works or if it's all a fad.

What is your guilty pleasure when it comes to food?

Junk food. Chips and all of that. It's a double-edged sword really because I get a sore-throat from them ever so quickly.

Three Malaysian food that you cannot live without are...

Chicken Rice, Nyonya Mee Goreng and Asam Laksa.

Any food-related rituals before your performance?

Plain water. That's it. I usually don't eat anything before a performance and only drink water. Alcohol is a big no-no and milky drinks too because they'll disrupt your vocal cords and you can't sing. The after-show ritual is eat like a monster!

What do you do to keep yourself healthy/looking good?

I play basketball twice a week and go to the gym as often as I can. Sleeping early and also leave-in hair conditioner does wonders to your hair.

And finally, what are your aspirations in life?

To be the king of the world. Not really. I'd really like to be a positive influence to first, our country, through the medium of music. Using music as a tool to spread love, joy, peace and hope. Music after all, is a universal language that breaks all barriers and knows no bounds. There's so much good music that deserve to be heard; so many good and talented artistes that need to be recognised. My aim is to make them known at an international level, representing Malaysia across the world.

NIPPORI

Pork-free

A Japanese home-cooked fare

BY HIRANMAYI AWLI MOHANAN

Crispy Chicken Karaage

a unique taste. It wasn't mere flour and chicken. Its aftertaste tasted a little spicy and savoury in whole.

No, it did not end there. A must-try dish at Nippori is their Saba with Yasai Oroshi. In layman's term, it is mackerel topped with sea salt or homemade Teriyaki sauce and is grilled to a crisp. In appearance, a Saba fish may look ordinary but the eating experience is different altogether. Its meat alone is savoury and when mixed with the Ponzu sauce, it brings the Saba fish to great heights of flavour. Apart from that, the Ponzu sauce is tangy and naturally, it is used with fish to cut the richness of taste and texture that the fish carries and balances it out. You won't be able to resist it.

Nippori is a humble town in a suburb of Tokyo, Japan with many small homely cafes. The owner (a local Japanese) of Nippori Café here in Empire Damansara fell in love with the simplistic concepts of the cafes in Nippori, Japan and voila, a humble eatery snuggled away on the 1st floor of Empire Damansara. Our journey to this restaurant was a confusing one; we walked around Empire Damansara for a good 10 minutes before locating it with the help of its owner, Mr Daichi. Nippori is the brand new sister restaurant of the popular Haraju Cube. This eatery is distinctive, with great potential and it is set to make its mark on the world with its offerings.

Just like the Japanese dramas and movies on TV, the façade of the restaurant screamed of an A-typical traditional Japanese restaurant, with a sliding door as an entrance. The interior of the restaurant is so cosy and simplistic. It's wooden accents on the walls and the floors exude the comfort of a Japanese home. Patrons can opt to be snug as a bug indoors, or choose to enjoy the breeze and the view of trees and the street, outdoors. If you dine indoor, you are required to remove your shoes (just like any Asian home) and make your way to an elevated platform with tables and cushions to take your seat. For a moment, we truly felt as if we were in Japan.

Upon taking our seats, the friendly staff welcomed us with a glass bottle of Japanese rice tea. The tea was unlike any other tea. It had hints of sesame and a coffee aftertaste. It is typically consumed during summer time in Japan when the weather is fiery hot. It is said to cool down the body and is a thirst quencher. When we asked the owner of Nippori on the underlying concept behind his restaurant, he related that he wanted a place that offers authentic Japanese home-cooked food; the kind of food that a mother whips up at home, for her family. That revelation certainly translated to their food. It is noteworthy that their food is fresh, contains no MSG and they do not use frozen ingredients of any kind.

The feast commenced with the Mentai Udon with Mini Karaage. Being their signature Udon, (Japanese wheat flour noodle) it comprises of a homemade dry Sanuki Udon with fish roe, egg yolk, seaweed, spring onion and a homemade sauce. It is served hot and in order to preserve the taste, it should be consumed immediately. If I could eat an Udon for the rest of my life, this would be it. The thick yet bouncy consistency of the noodle complemented by the aforementioned condiments made a finger licking good meal. Merely thinking back of it has got my stomach growling.

Still revelling in the glory that was the Mentai Udon, we moved on to try the Crispy Chicken Karaage. Apparently, Chicken Karaage is one of the most common Japanese home-cooked dish and we could see why. Nippori's signature Karaage is marinated for more than 24 hours for that burst of flavour. The chicken itself is succulent and juicy on the inside, yet crispy on the outside. As I love Japanese cuisine, the Chicken Karaage is no stranger to me. That being said, the Chicken Karaage I tried at Nippori had Finally, the feast galore came to end with a presumably common dish but it was disguisingly a zealous contender. Don't let its appearance fool you. Nippori's Fried Fish with Homemade Tartar Sauce is a crispy, deep-fried white fish garnished with their secret tartar sauce that would make you fall in love. Unlike many other fried fish and tartar sauce, this dish gets to throw down the gauntlet for its originality and ingenuity. If you look closely, you can tell that the tartar sauce has mashed egg in it. Perhaps that, complemented by the crunchy fresh fish, it results in a full-flavoured mouth-watering fare you won't want to end.

HAPPINESS IN EVERY BITE

BY JACQUELINE BENITA PAUL

regardless of the occasion. Here are some reasons that you should definitely order the 3D Gelato Flower in a Bouquet.

1. Valentine's Day is coming and the joy from enjoying this treat will last longer than real flowers.

Be sure to dig into it with your friends, family or loved one. Especially after a long week, there is just so much satisfaction from crushing the edible strawberry bowl that will leave an everlasting sweet memory.

Chef Kimora who is the talent behind all the unique creations from Stick Arts had a story to share from her working experience. She told us about a pair of newlyweds who came by the kiosk in Mines Shopping Centre. The wife is the biggest Hello Kitty fan, so much so the husband completely dreaded the point when she spotted the 3D Hello Kitty Gelato on display. He put up quite an argument that he didn't want her to buy it and he felt that it was too "girly" for him to be seen with the Hello Kitty and Dear Daniel (he did not know he was Hello Kitty's boyfriend). Amid the heated argument, Chef Kimora could gauge that they had been having trouble finding their romantic spark for quite some time. To satisfy both parties, Chef Kimora suggested that the husband could go for the Teddy Bear design instead and he happily accepted. As they were seated, something peculiar happened. After snapping photos with her Hello Kitty 3D Gelato, the wife took her husband's Teddy Bear gelato and bit the head off. Stunned and angered, he demanded to know why and they got into another heated argument only to suddenly stop and laugh. Perplexed, Chef Kimora enquired only to find out that their first encounter was from him stealing and destroying her ice cream. She had waited for a long time for such an opportune moment to get her revenge only for it to bring back the spark of romance. This is just one of the many experiences that have occurred at Stick Arts.

Even if you are a procrastinator, it only takes three days to prepare this thoughtful gift that will give a lasting memory. In fact, Stick Arts would welcome some specific request in order to make sure your gift fits the occasion.

In conjunction with Chap Goh Mei, Stick Arts has introduced the Mandarin Orange Sherbet that comes in an attractive heart shape with a small orange piece shape in the middle. This new flavour was inspired by the tradition of throwing oranges into the sea by single ladies. It is without a doubt, the most popular and colourful moment in the history of Chap Goh Mei. It is believed that by throwing tangerines into the sea, these young girls would find themselves a good husband. Well, instead of throwing it and praying for love, biting into their new Mandarin Orange Sherbet comes as a better alternative. During our visit, we also got

GRAVY BABY

Lights, Camera, Pie!

BY HIRANMAYI AWLI MOHANAN

George Bernard Shaw once said that there is no sincerer love than the love for food. Speaking of the love for food, there is a culinary destination amidst the humble neighbourhood of Taman Desa, that will sweep you off your feet and that is the Gravy Baby restaurant. Gravy Baby is one of those places that screams out to you. It's Hollywood-esque façade is alluring and captivating to say the least. As stated on its massive eye-catching signage, this eatery is famous for its pies amongst other things, which is evident by its diverse and extensive menu.

Stepping into the interior of Gravy Baby transports you to a movie set where the chairs are akin to a director or actor's chair, a display counter showcasing their pastries and a lighted make-up mirror adorns the brick wall, emitting an organic and rustic vibe. The interior of this establishment exudes a contemporary feel with a nod to the past, accompanied by upbeat yet soothing tunes of the past and present. To top it off, all Gravy Baby outlets (three in total) incorporate a theatrical-like open kitchen where patrons are able to witness the magic in the making as well as the antics that goes on in the kitchen.

And now, to the food. Let us start by saying that all ingredients that go into the drinks and food are made fresh on a daily basis. The genius behind the kitchen is a former chef of the Army and Navy Club, Chef Paul Elliott. Having tried their house specialty, we now comprehend why Gravy Baby is famous for their pies. The Lamb Shepherd's Pie is in a class of its own. It comes with a side of mashed potato and minted mushy peas, a classic English dish. I especially loved the shortcrust of this dish for its soft consistency and the juices from the tender succulent lamb meat. The mashed potato was absolutely divine. We shamelessly dug in and couldn't (or wouldn't) stop. One does not need to fly to England to try this classic fare.

Another highlight for us was the Spicy Lobster T.L.T. It comprised fresh lobster tails, sliced turkey, tomato and lettuce served on a buttery brioche bun with homemade spicy gherkin dressing and panko breadcrumbs, and comes with a side of homemade chips. This dish oozed with piquant flavours from the thick chunks of lobster, crisp to the toast bun and the spicy Gherkin sauce that went well with each other like peanut butter and jelly.

The gluttony continued with the Marinara Pizza consisting of a rich homemade tomato sauce topped with tuna, red onion, oregano, cherry tomatoes, jalapenos, chilli and finished off with mozzarella cheese. Being a pizza lover, this was just heaven for me. My hands kept reaching out to grab slices of the pizza to the point that I had to stop myself. As Chef Paul was explaining the ingredients that went into the pizza, one could see the glimmer of passion in his eyes. Having granted the access to take a tour of the kitchen, we could see the mount of dedication and passion that goes into creating one single dish and that, we believe makes a world of a difference.

As for desserts, we recommend trying Chocolate Ganache Waffle. It was the most decadent dessert I had ever seen. It was basically heaps of waffle, topped off with a generous amount of chocolate ganache, assorted nuts and whipped cream. Another must-try is the Chocolate Raspberry Bianco. It was easy on the eyes as well as our mouths. The cake just melted in our mouths like a dream. When you slice it, you will be able to see beautiful layers of white sponge cake and raspberry puree.

To quench down all the delectable offerings, we tried the hibiscus and cucumber lemonade as well the basil lemonade. It was so refreshing and soothing, given the weather in Malaysia. The mastermind behind the deliciously exotic drinks and cocktails is a French mixologist, Tony Comas, who flew to KL from a stint in Buenos Aires. He also offered us two cocktails named, the Smoking Grass and Baby Bouquet. The Smoking Grass comprised bourbon, ginger beer, honey and lemongrass smoke. It had a spicy but interesting aftertaste. Baby Bouquet, on the other hand, was made up of gin, white cacao, lemon and lavender. Conclusively, Gravy Baby offers more than just food; it offers an experience.

Nasi Ayam Melecur

TUMIS @ TEAK 5

Where Food is Cooked with Love

BY JACQUELINE BENITA PAUL

It is no secret that Solaris Dutamas is a foodie destination but what we've recently discovered is a special dining spot that deserves to be put on the spotlight. We ventured to Tumis @ Teak 5 which is a homely restaurant that features dishes akin to eating at a loving family home. Truth be told, this is the kind of place that you can only truly appreciate once you are seated because amid the dining offerings in Solaris Dutamas, the exterior of Tumis @ Teak 5 does not quite stand out as much as the entire experience, from food to service.

Most who do know this restaurant are nearby office employees, regular shoppers and elites who enjoy the Nasi Padang (Padang steamed rice served with various choices of pre-cooked dishes that originated from Padang city, the capital of West Sumatera) that is served during lunchtime starting from 11.30am.

One key highlight of the dining experience at Tumis is their spicy dishes which are utterly divine but equally dangerous if you can't handle the spice. For instance, their Nasi Padang pre-cooked dishes include Ayam Lemak Chili Padi, Daging Maut, Asam Pedas Ikan Pari, Gulai Tenggiri, Begedel, Ayam Dara, Ikan Keli Goreng Berempah and fresh vegetables.

The Daging Maut (Beef of Death) is deadly to someone who enjoys the taste of Daging Masak Kicap (Spicy Soy Sauce Beef) which is not remotely as spicy as the Daging Maut but should you appreciate the spicier things in life, this dish is heavenly. Kak Yani, who runs the restaurant together with her husband tells us that this dish was inspired by her customer who requested for an extremely spicy dish to be the punishment for someone who lost a bet in the office. We are pretty sure that there would be deliberate losing just to have a reason to enjoy the Daging Maut dish. For an equally spicy option, you can even enjoy the Nasi Ayam Melecur (Scalded Chicken Rice).

Staying true to the welcoming ambience and nostalgic experience, you will find a functional jukebox in the middle of the restaurant that actually plays old Malaysian classic music from P.Ramlee, The Beatles or Top Chart 70's Hits that further enhances the whole dining scene. "I want people to eat with satisfaction," said Kak Yani, who we found to be as vibrant and fiery as the food she serves up.

Even the a la carte menu is not simply one main dish with rice but Kak Yani takes into consideration that a dish should be comprehensive and so for instance, if you were to order the Nasi Ayam Melecur, you would find that there would be an omelette that is much like the kind in a homecooked meal with some fried fish crackers to balance out the heat. What we love most is that Kak Yani is the kind of woman who can remember her customers just as much as her customers remember her. This is something that is so rare to find in the ostentatious food scene in Malaysia. Overall, we would conclude that Tumis @ Teak 5 is truly the embodiment of a Malaysian experience through hospitality, sincerity and bonding over the love of food.

PAN MEE

A Pan-tastic Fare
Non-halal

I don't know about you but Pan Mee is one of my favourite local delights. There's just something about the bouncy soft noodles complemented by the chilli and other condiments that just make us exhale in utter contentment. In that respect, we took the liberty to list down the 5 best Pan Mee in town.

BY HIRANMAYI AWLI MOHANAN

RESTAURANT KIN KIN

Kin Kin Restaurant is known by many as the original chilli Pan Mee of KL. This humble eatery still maintains its old shoplot in Chow Kit, facing what is now Quill City Mall. There are many reasons why people flock to get a taste of Kin Kin's Pan Mee and we now understand why. They offer springy noodles to the touch, flaky and spicy chilli and freshly fried crunchy ikan bilis. In addition, a bowl of the dry chilli Pan Mee is accompanied by a 'sayur manis' egg soup. These elements complement each other so deliciously that you will instinctively order another bowl. We did the same. Kin Kin Restaurant is spreading the love of its Pan Mee by opening a new chain in Pandan Indah.

40, Jalan Dewan Sultan Sulaiman, 50300 Kampung Baru, Kuala Lumpur

RESTAURANT SUPER KITCHEN

If you are from KL or PJ, Pan Mee is synonymous with Super Kitchen Restaurant. This restaurant has been sprouting around KL like mushrooms, to the extent of recently opening a branch in Singapore. The pioneer shop in Kepong still operates to date and it stands as one of the busiest branches of the six. Super Kitchen spoils its patrons with its variety of Pan Mee preparations to choose from. If you can't decide between the traditional soup and chilli Pan Mee, you can dig into their curry version of this dish. The Super Kitchen restaurant gain loyal customers with their offering of thick and firm noodles that are prepared upon ordering. As for the secret behind their homemade chilli, they are keeping it well within their family since the restaurant's inception.

SPECIAL SMOOTH PAN MEE @ FA KEE RESTAURANT, PUCHONG

If you live in Puchong, you must be well acquainted with Uncle Chan's special smooth Pan Mee. It has been making a name for itself for the past eight years as one of the best in town. What makes Uncle Chan's special smooth Pan Mee distinct is its handmade noodles and the passion that goes into making it. Patrons can opt for the dry or the soup Pan Mee. The broth of the Pan Mee is a special blend of pork bones and anchovies. This is then garnished with minced and sliced pork, sliced shiitake mushroom, fried beancurd, anchovies, and a choice of either lettuce or 'sayur manis'. We just love how generous and distinct the Pan Mee soup is. The dry version is Pan Mee coated in black soya sauce, oyster sauce, and some lard with a healthy topping of minced pork to keep you satiated throughout the day.

RON SHU XIA PAN MEE @ CHAN SOW LIN

This hidden gem was a tough one to find. Located in Jalan Dua between Jalan Sungai Besi and Jalan Chan Sow Lin, Ron Shu Xia Pan Mee is a serious contender in the business. The name of this eatery is defined as 'Pan Mee under the ficus tree'. Everything good lies under a tree apparently. This Pan Mee definitely did not disappoint. Aside from the usual Pan Mee offerings, we were blown away by their special XO Pan Mee served with a saucer of XO paste on the side to stir in with the vegetables, including sliced black fungus. You can also choose between a thin or torn Pan Mee noodle. This dish blew our socks off with its spiciness and its piquancy of flavours.

Jalan Dua, Chan Sow Lin, 55200 Kuala Lumpur

STALL NO. 12 @ SS2 PJ WAI SEK KAI

Located in the food haven that is SS2, stall no. 12 at the SS2, Petaling Jaya 'glutton street' does not only offer soup and dry Pan Mee variations, but also curry. You have a choice between noodle strands or torn pieces for your Pan Mee. The curry version comes with curry chicken. However, the great thing is that you can substitute the meat for other usual Pan Mee condiments such as fishballs. This curry Pan Mee is flavourful and addictive. A definite keeper in our books.

Damansara Kim

Foodie Neighbourhood Non-halal

It would be a crying shame if foodies have not made their way to the F&B scene in Damansara Kim. It is quite unassuming given that it is a neighbourhood area but there are vast developments at the different cafes and restaurants that have their own unique flavours and ambience to offer. However, should you be a stranger to this area, fret no more as we have checked out some of the must-try culinary offerings in the area for your upcoming visit.

DEEP FRIED BARRAMUNDI (SIAKAP) FISH FILLET FISH HEAD MEE HOON

Unlike most Chinese restaurants, this particular place does not serve food that uses MSG but delivers flavours that would make you believe the dishes are homecooked. The restaurant, which opened in 2014, is famous for its homemade traditional Teochew-style fish head noodle. The broth is served with the juicy texture of saltwater barramundi or known locally as 'siakap'. The broth tasted thin at the first sip but as we continued to drink on, the aroma of milk and sweet essence of the broth started to develop in the palate. One spoonful of noodles and one spoonful of soup, one bite of soft fish fillet, followed a tangy munch of preserved vegetable and tomato slices in between. Each ingredient comes to a good match. Empty the entire bowl of broth if you wish to. Don't worry, you won't be feeling thirsty after that.

PAPA YONG'S SPAGHETTI BOLOGNESE

Ever wanted to just go back to simpler times where you could simply enjoy playing Lat Tali Lat during recess or even just waiting out a long day? Well, there is now such a place that can transport you (figuratively) back to that time not only by the kind of ambience it offers but also by the food that is served. Lat Tali Lat is Damansara Kim's latest addition to the F&B scene. While waiting for your meal, you and your friends can enjoy some old school games or if you happen to be flying solo, there is an adorable hamster that can join you for dinner. Papa Yong's Spaghetti Bolognese brings back memories from high school when we used to take the longer way home and play at the playground only to build up an appetite for the comforting homecooked food that awaited us at home. So if you have not gotten your dosage of nostalgia, you know where you need to go.

POACHED FISH WITH BUTTER

This dish is served with green apple salad and delicious asam pedas sauce. We recommend pairing it with their Coastline Chardonnay. We were quite taken with the approach of adding a modern twist to traditional flavours. Moreover, Kompassion has a fascinating menu that features fusion dishes that primarily focus on authentic Thai flavours while adopting influences from as far as Japan, South Korea and Italy. Should you have a sweet craving, the Pandon Gelato with Mango Sticky Rice is a lovely treat that you can share with that special someone.

Table & Kitchen was formerly known as The Kitchen Table back in 2014. The revamped outlet now includes not only the all-day dining experience but there is also upstairs dining for more private affairs such as dinner parties or more resplendent dining options featuring contemporary and refined cooking. Want to impress a girl? Bring her here for a brunch date! But do make reservations because the weekend brunch crowd is definitely not to be underestimated. TEATIME TRYST

Luxury Afternoon Tea Spots in Kuala Lumpur

Back in the 1840s, the Duchess of Bedford, Anna Maria Russel experienced 'hunger pangs' while waiting for meals between lunch and dinner time. To solve this, she decided to prepare a tray of tea, bread and butter and cake to enjoy. She shared this experience with her friends and it has progressed to what we've all come to recognise as afternoon tea. Contrary to popular belief, afternoon tea is completely different from high tea. During an afternoon tea, scones, macarons, sweet offerings and sandwiches are served while more hearty meals are served during high tea. On that note, we have prepared a list of your next go-to spots for an exquisite afternoon tea experience.

The very idea of going to Shangri-La Hotel invokes excitement, be it for a stay or dining in at their elegant restaurants.

Spicy Witch

AD BAR

Find it and See your Spirits Lifted

BY JACQUELINE BENITA PAUL

Anno Domini, or in short AD Bar, is the new fancy addition to Bangsar's nightlife scene that has much to offer its patrons (if they can find it). Picture an elegant tavern where you can enjoy the comfort of spacious seatings away from the hustle and bustle of the Telawi streets. The only tip we can offer to find this establishment is to follow the dark stairs up where you would find a long glass window on your right-hand side and on your left, a big wooden door that could easily be mistaken for the entry point. We recommend to pay close attention to the painting between the curtains that will lead you to an unnerving fireplace that depicts the darker side of the medieval theme. Although slightly eerie, we were drawn to the décor and as we made our way to our seats, it became a topic of discussion.

There is nothing we would want to change about the décor here. Everything was placed right where it belonged from candles to prison-like bars that simply added more intrigue and intensity to the ambience. We perused the menu and as medieval enthusiasts ourselves, each cocktail teased our curiosity since it has been sectioned according to tasting notes.

Fairy's Tears

REVIVE YOUR SPIRIT WITH THE DANCING APE

In all honesty, I have never truly enjoyed the flavours of assam boi till I had this cocktail that had assam boi-infused tequila, pineapple and lime juice. Not only was it refreshing but the impeccable balance of alcohol and the sourness of the assam boi paired with the sweetness of pineapple made for a drink that could instantly bring a smile to my face.

GENIE POP, A FUN SURPRISE!

I'll admit that there isn't a chance for such a drink to exist in the medieval period but if it did, the bartender would definitely get away for creating such a magical drink. Who knew that combining the intense flavour of grapefruit juice with the sweetness of raspberry and thick consistency of egg white would result in a drink that offers a refreshing twist of fruity notes. You can choose to enjoy the pop candy before and after the drink without discounting the fun in the least.

From the left, Dancing Ape and Genie Pop

TASTE A TWIST WITH SPICY WITCH

In the grand scale of cocktails, I would place this drink on the stronger and more adventurous spectrum. Before I get to the flavour, I'd like to take a moment to simply admire the design of the cup that captures the essence of the drink. We dare you to drink from the claw chalice of the Spicy Witch that contains lemongrass-infused vodka, ginger, honey, lime and black pepper. A sip of this would make you feel pretty bold and powerful which also sums up the flavours of the drink.

GOLDEN LEAF

From the sounds of its name, this drink sounds like a name of an ancient artefact that could breathe life to lost souls. This would be accurate given the sweet and refreshing taste of the pandan-infused rum, bourbon, coconut water and gula melaka. Having this drink felt like a reward or a prize after a long and difficult quest. So reward yourself with a glass or two.

Yeti Cup

DRAGONS BREATH TO INSPIRE COURAGE

A true knight to remember (excuse the pun), simply won't do without a glass of Dragon's Breath. It is a concoction that uses blended scotch, spiced rum that is balanced out with gula melaka and smoked minnaron to add different dimensions of flavours yet keeping an acceptable level of intensity with the orange bitters. Be warned, it is quite potent but should you feel up to the challenge, drink and be merry.

THE SLAYER (AN OFF-MENU COCKTAIL)

Staying true to the embodiment of a medieval tavern, we were offered the opportunity to request a specially made drink based on our preferred tasting notes and base poison of choice (liquor). This drink is definitely not for the faint-hearted with its use of jalapeno rum and Monkey Shoulders whiskey. Despite its unique ingredients and nature of the drink, it was marvellous in every aspect as the intense flavours danced around my mouth like a celebration.

Other must-try options include the creamy Yeti Cup that is much like an Adult Milkshake that is presented in a macabre cup that invokes the spirit of your inner child to come out and have fun. For a lighter option, the Fairy's Tears is a visually stunning drink that tastes as good as it looks. We were especially enchanted by the change of the blue pea to a gorgeous purple hue once it was mixed together with the vodka and sparkling wine with elderflower, and lychee liquor.

The February promotions include the promotional cocktail that starts at RM 20 and with the purchase of 3 pints of Beer for only RM60, you can get a surprise cocktail. By the way, you can enjoy a 10% off the bill by mentioning KL Lifestyle Magazine to the waiter. It is not applicable with ongoing promotions and is valid till 1st April 2017. Sip Sip Hooray!

ANAGEN HAIR STUDIO

On the cutting edge of hair care

After

More often than not, the health of our hair is overlooked in the pursuit of keeping up with the latest trend of hair styles and hair colours. Recognising this discrepancy, Anagen Hair Studio utilises a range of natural products with herbal ingredients that are carefully selected to suit each of their customers' needs. The name Anagen itself is a testimony to their philosophy of natural haircare, as it means active growth phase of hair follicles. With all this in mind, a few of us decided to drop by this hair studio located at Damansara Intan, Petaling Jaya.

Upon entering their spacious establishment, my colleagues and I were immediately struck by the opulence of the interior space. The floor-to-ceiling windows induced a sun-kissed setting as it brought in much light into the well-designed hair salon. According to its founder, Tengku Puan Sri Tengku Puteri Rosmawin' Abdullah, Anagen Hair Studio was designed to reflect the aesthetics of the classic English period. This Elizabethan design is manifested in the various white grandeur mirrors, velvet drapings, framed masquerade masks on the wall and even a chandelier.

The man of the hour, Derek Tan is in charge of running the salon and acts as lead hairdresser. He carefully consulted us on the best hairstyle and hair colour to suit our individual face shape and preferences. I am particularly averse to hairstylists due to previous nightmare experiences in other hair salons. However, I trusted Derek as it was immediately apparent that he is the most competent man for the task. Even though there were four of us, Derek still managed to add his personal touch on each of us by carefully delegating the tasks among himself and his other hairdressers.

Reassured by Derek's authority and expertise, we proceeded with our respective transformations. For Mila, Derek suggested a two-tone colour procedure. An ashy-brown colour was chosen as it would best complement her light caramel skin tone and make her skin appear brighter. On the other hand, Amir wanted to replicate the look of K-Pop idols, therefore he underwent a relaxing to soften his tight curls and added a touch of a natural brown colour to his hair. According to Derek, this would make his hair more manageable, thus making it easier for Amir to style his hair in future.

As for myself, I was initially skeptical of what could be done as I was still growing my short hair. However, Derek exerted his hairdressing prowess once again when he recommended I undergo a relaxing to tame my frizzy hair, followed by a bob haircut that would better complement my small and slim face. Finally, Lydia opted to colour her hair golden-brown and add in Korean 4D hair extensions. Derek explained that the extensions would add more bounce and volume to Lydia's hair as she has fine hair. These hair extensions are made from real human hair and dyed on the spot to match the customer's hair colour to ensure an effortless disguise.

Throughout our respective procedures, Derek and his hairdressers constantly checked on us to ensure we were comfortable and happy with the direction of the hairstyle. This lovely atmosphere was further amplified by the assurance that our scalps were being treated with the best ingredients. Aligned with Anagen's dedication to using safe and natural ingredients, our scalps were treated with various Mielle Professional products that hail from Korea. I was convinced by Mielle's effectiveness by the fact that my hair did not smell of harsh chemicals, as it normally would in other hair salons.

Overall, our experience at this hair studio summed up the essence of Anagen. We were greeted by a friendly and professional team of hairdressers that were led expertly by Derek, who strived to provide us with excellent service. Anagen founder, Puan Sri Tengku Puteri Rosmawin' Abdullah shared, "I want Anagen to be a convenient one-stop centre for customers who are looking for a quality and natural approach to scalp and hair care". True to her words, we received this and much more. She hopes to expand the Anagen business in future, but for now, you can visit them at Damansara Intan or their sister outlet at Publika.

Ever humble and approachable, she always strives to fulfil and surpass her customer's expectation. So rest assured, when you do step into this nail studio, you are promised the most dedicated one-on-one service from the very best.

As the resident nail artist, Jessica caters to a variety of manicure and pedicure needs. She provides the standard services associated with a nail studio, inclusive of classic, gel, spa and nail extension treatments. However, her true speciality is nail art.

Nail art has become a viral art form by itself in recent times (just search up this hashtag on Instagram to be enthralled for hours) and Jessica has been quick to jump on the bandwagon. She keeps herself updated on the latest trends in the nail art world, which enables her to create beautiful and unique designs that are customised to fit each of her customer's specific aesthetic needs.

Jessica Wong, manicurist and founder of MJC nails Studio

At MJC Nails Studio, she caters to her customer's variety of demands, but the most common request, according to Jessica, is for her to design something with some 'bling' thrown in. She happily obliges to these requests and this is evident in her ability to skillfully use Swarovski stones in her nail designs, which have become a favourite among her customers.

If that is not impressive enough, take a look at one of the nail art which she designed for our manager here at KL Lifestyle. Although you may not notice it at first glance, those pretty little cloth flowers are detachable! With the aid of mini magnets, you can easily replace them with another flower charm which may complement your look better. Hey, if you can mix and match your attire every day, why not do the same with your nails too, right?

At MJC Nails Studio, Jessica strives to ensure that you leave her premises completely satisfied. If you already have a design in mind, simply explain it to her or better yet, show it (Pro tip: Look up nail art on Pinterest too when you are done with #nailsofinstagram). Or perhaps you are planning to get a manicure done specially for an upcoming event, if so, all you have got to do is inform her of the type/colour of your outfit, and Jessica will advise you on what nail art would best suit it.

So, whether you are currently scouting for the right manicurist for your next big event or just looking for an opportunity to pamper yourself silly, Jessica may be able to help. She accepts walk-ins, but priority is given to those with prior appointments.

Should you love yourself better with it, go ahead

BY HIRANMAYI AWLI MOHANAN

In this cutting-edge contemporary world we are living in, there are many facets of beauty, one of the facets being breast augmentation. Breast augmentation has become increasingly popular of late. It is a surgical procedure involving the placement of breast implants to increase fullness and to improve symmetry of the breasts, or to restore breast volume lost after weight reduction or pregnancy. There are kaleidoscopes of reasons that drive most women to get breast augmentation and the most common is in the name of beauty. Aesthetics should not be the driving power for you to alter yourself. Love yourself for who you are because you are fine and beautiful, flaws and all. However, should you love yourself better after this procedure then by all means, go ahead. Audrey Hepburn once said that the beauty of a woman must be seen from her own eyes because that is the doorway to her heart, where love resides.

Here's a breakdown of things you should know before getting a breast augmentation:

Your first breast surgery probably won't be your last.

Note that 25 percent of women will need another surgery after 10 years down the road because implants don't last forever. What could eventually happen is that the implant could begin to leak or a scar shell could form around it, deforming the shape and causing a need for a new implant. There are other factors involved that could lead to having another surgery after a couple of years, such as, weight loss, pregnancy, and change in preference.

It will cost you an astronomical amount.

The price of the surgery varies from RM12,000 to RM20,000, depending on the hospital and the plastic surgeon. On the average, the cost of having your breasts augmented can be exorbitant. So do take heed and contemplate before coming to a decision.

Breasts with implants feel different to the touch than real breasts.

It is said that silicone breasts connote to real breasts, but at the end of the day, they are still man-made and they do not resemble the natural breast tissue.

Breast augmentations can possibly affect your ability to breastfeed in the future.

A small risk involved with breast augmentation is if you have an areola incision, there are chances that you could damage the minor ducts and that would result in the areola being cut off from the main portion of the gland, hindering your ability to breastfeed. Women who have underarm incisions or incisions in the crease of the breast should not have a problem.

You might lose feeling in your nipples after breast augmentation or reduction.

Another minor risk to be cognisant about is the loss of sensation in the nipples whenever there is surgery to the breasts. There are a number of factors that contribute to this occurrence, including breast shape and surgery type. Although you lose sensation in your nipples, they will still respond to cold and stimulation.

You're not a great candidate for breast augmentation if you have a very strong family history of breast cancer, obesity or smoking.

Your genealogy plays a role if you are considering breast augmentation because it results in increased risks and complications during and after surgery. If you have any significant medical issues, you would need to be thoroughly evaluated and cleared before surgery.

Not all "plastic surgeons" are board certified and trustworthy.

Ladies, this point is something you can't turn a side eye on. It is a prerequisite to do an exhaustive research on the surgeons and the medical institution before committing. First, make sure the surgeon is a registered medical practitioner by visiting the Malaysian Medical Council website at www.mmc.moh.gov.my. Be wary that all registered medical practitioners who qualify and wish to practise aesthetic medical practice (including cosmetic surgeries) are required to register under the National Registry of Registered Medical Practitioners Practising Aesthetic Medical Practice in Malaysia. Next, you should make sure that the surgeon has substantial experience in the type of surgery you want. Go ahead and ask to see a body of their work and before-and-after photos, speak to other patients if possible and finally, schedule a consultation to get a feel for the surgeon's approach.

As Managing Director of Malaysia Airports Holdings Berhad, Datuk Badlisham Ghazali has gained considerable recognition in the global aviation world. A speaker at the World Routes Strategy Summit in Chicago in 2014 and the Global Airport Development Conference in 2015 and 2016, he is also a Director of Airports Council International Asia-Pacific. He sits on the Boards of the international airports at Hyderabad in India and Sabiha-Gokchen in Turkey.

This month, Datuk Badlisham shares some thoughts about Quality Management.

AIRPORT MD SPEAKS

"It is always a nice feeling when a visitor compliments your home, and at work there is pleasant satisfaction when a foreign organisation recognises your performance as outstanding! Having someone from the outside looking in and recognising your efforts is always a rewarding experience.

"I guess this is how we felt when Malaysia Airports clinched a second successive achievement in quality management from the European Society of Quality Research when we received the ESQR Quality Choice Prize 2016 in Berlin recently. The Gala Dinner Award Ceremony was attended by quality-management experts from all over the world.

"Based in Lausanne, Switzerland, the European Society of Quality Research promotes quality awareness, recognises good business practices, technological innovation and, quality achievements in organisations worldwide - then, publicises these organisations' successful performance strategies.

"To me, Malaysia Airports receiving international recognition for our quality-management system is an acknowledgement of our relentless effort and continuous initiatives to improve our businesses, especially in providing the best possible services to our customers. It is also a result of all stakeholders putting forth their best effort in a spirit of continuous improvement.

"However, as I mentioned when the awards were announced, while this is an achievement to be proud of, we must not rest on our laurels! Instead, we must take it as a fresh challenge to push further towards quality-management excellence at each and every one of our airports.

"Most importantly to me, all the awards and accolades we win locally and around the world must take second place to the one recognition I value most:- I strongly believe that the best recognition of quality-management is when our airport-users are pleased and fully satisfied with their experience at any and all of our facilities. The best measure of our achievements must be in the joyful experiences and memorable moments of our airport-users - and that includes you, the readers of Airlink!"

Introducing the Malaysian Aviation Commission

Malaysia Airports welcomes the work of this newly established Commission

If you travel by air in Malaysia, you'll be glad to know that there is a relatively new organisation that champions your rights as air passengers. The Malaysian Aviation Commission (MAVCOM) was formally established on 1 March 2016 under the Malaysian Aviation Commission Act 2015. It is an independent entity that regulates economic and commercial matters related to the civil aviation industry in Malaysia. The aim of MAVCOM is to promote a commercially-viable, consumer-oriented and resilient civil aviation industry which supports the nation's economic growth.

In a broad sense, the functions of MAVCOM include working to provide a mechanism for protection of consumers; to regulate economic matters relating to the civil aviation industry; to provide a mechanism for dispute resolution between aviation industry players; to administer and manage air traffic rights; to advise the Government; and to administer and manage routes under public service obligations.

Most air-travellers would like to know about their consumer-protection rights. With the introduction of the Malaysian Aviation Consumer Protection Code 2016, an air-traveller's rights are clearly defined and protected under national law. These rights cover dealings with airlines, airports and other aviation service providers. Knowing your rights can help you receive a fair outcome if something goes wrong while traveling. The Code helps you learn about your rights and how to exercise them when it relates to flight delays and cancellations, pricing, baggage and various other issues.

All the information on aviation consumer rights available on the MAVCOM website, is based on this Code and includes references that you can refer to during a dispute or a claim. Any airline (including foreign airlines) operating into or out of Malaysia and all airports in Malaysia are required to comply with the Code.

Take baggage for example. As an air-traveller, you have an expectation to receive your bags as soon as you land. If your baggage does not arrive on the same flight as you, or is lost or damaged during the flight, you may be entitled to compensation for the inconvenience caused. To claim compensation, you must file a written complaint with your airline on arrival or within 7 days of arrival if your baggage is damaged; or on arrival or within 21 days of arrival if your baggage is delayed. If you feel that you have not received a satisfactory resolution within a period of 30 days, contact MAVCOM with a copy of your written complaint and the airline's response.

The role of MAVCOM differs from those of the Ministry of Transport (MOT) and the Department of Civil Aviation (DCA). The MOT is responsible for industry policy-making and government-to-government discussions (including to spearhead bilateral or multilateral negotiations on traffic rights), while the DCA continues to regulate technical and safety matters for Malaysia's civil aviation industry.

For the aviation industry, MAVCOM's responsibilities also include the issuance of Air Services Licenses (scheduled services) and Permits (non-scheduled services) as well as Aerodrome Operator Licenses and Ground Handling Licenses. Its responsibilities also cover the administration and allocation of air traffic rights, the approval of scheduled and non-scheduled flight filings, and the monitoring of slot allocation for airlines or other aircraft operators. It is in this last respect that MAVCOM works with Malaysia Airports very closely.

Slot allocation refers to how airlines are given certain access times and dates for take-off and landing at airports or other aerodrome facilities. When operating in Malaysia, all aircraft are required to abide by their allocated time slots when operating their services, and avoid using their slots in unintended ways which disrupt airport or air traffic operations. MAVCOM is responsible for monitoring and providing oversight in the management of the slots allocation process. The process of slot allocation itself is currently being managed by the Malaysia Airports Holdings Berhad.

Malaysia Airports stewards the National Slot Coordination Malaysia (NSCM). Working under IATA's Worldwide Slot Guidelines and under the authority of MAVCOM, NSCM ensures slots are allocated to airlines and other aircraft operators in a neutral, transparent, and non-discriminatory way. Malaysia Airports General Manager Airline Marketing Mohamed Sallauddin Haji Mat Sah sums up things neatly when he says that in every area where there is synergy, Malaysia Airports works closely with MAVCOM to facilitate domestic, regional and international air-travel; and to ensure airlines and air-travellers have smoother flights with the optimum balance of regulations and rights!

- Integrity: MAVCOM adheres to the highest level of ethics in all that it does.
- Professionalism: MAVCOM always carries out its responsibilities in a professional manner.
- Impartiality: MAVCOM is independent and impartial in the execution of its duties.

Airlines celebrate MCTA 25th Anniversary!

It was a proud moment in the history of Malaysia's Travel Industry when the Malaysian Chinese Tourism Association celebrated its 25th Anniversary last month. Airline Managers and members of the Malaysian aviation community were prominent when hundreds of travel-industry luminaries, government officials, diplomats and representatives of several National Tourism Organisations gathered at the spacious banquet-hall of Chuai Heng Restaurant in Kuala Lumpur last month to celebrate the historic and auspicious occasion.

The Chairman of the Organising Committee Jeffrey Phua opened the evening by welcoming the Guests of Honour. They were Chairman of Malaysian Tourism Promotion Board Datuk Dr. Siew Ka Wei, and Director-General of Tourism Malaysia Datuk Seri Mirza Mohammad Taiyab. Jeffrey Phua also thanked the evening's sponsors, including airlines like Air Astana, Air Asia, Air France KLM, Austrian Airlines, Bangkok Airways, France KLM, China Airlines, China Eastern Airlines, China Southern Airlines, Emirates, Eva Air, Korean Air, Malaysia Airlines, Myanmar Airways International, Singapore Airlines, SriLankan Airlines, Thai Airways, Qatar Airways, Vietnam Airlines and Xiamen Airlines, which contributed gifts and tickets to help make the night's Lucky Draw a rousing success.

MCTA National President Dato' Albert Tan Sam Soon reiterated a warm welcome to all guests, and explained that the association was originally set up in 1992 as a national association to represent the Chinese travel and tourism organisations in Malaysia. It liaises with the government and the private-sector, and provides training, education, research, information and other services to ensure a positive business-climate. The MCTA promotes the professional image of Malaysian Chinese travel and tourism organizations.

Today MCTA comprises of more than 700 members representing travel agencies, tour operators, hotels & resorts, specialty shops, restaurants and other tourism-related organizations. MCTA has its Headquarters in its own building in Pandan Jaya, Kuala Lumpur and Branch Chapters in Sabah, Johor, Perak, Penang and Negeri Sembilan; and delegates from these branches attended the event.

Other events during the exciting night included presentation of mementoes and tokens of appreciation to MITM 2016 sponsors. There were also thrilling performances by the Vivas Water Drums Troupe and the popular music group Sandcastle.

ETHIOPIAN AIRLINES Increases Flights

This month, Ethiopian Airlines, the largest and fastest-growing African airline, is pleased to announce that it is increasing its current flights frequency to four times weekly between Kuala Lumpur and Addis Ababa, says Malaysia Country Manager Osman Habib.

The increased service operates every Monday in addition to the existing service on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday weekly using the ultra-modern Dreamliner Boeing 787. The increased flights will serve the growing traffic and giving the best possible connectivity options to passengers travelling between Malaysia and Africa, he explains, adding that Ethiopian customers can now enjoy the ultimate travel experience on board Ethiopian Dreamliner with quieter flights, the biggest windows in the sky, higher ceiling, unique lighting and higher humidity.

Ethiopian is a global carrier that operates the youngest and the most modern fleet in the continent, with an average aircraft age of less than 5 years, serving more than 92 international destinations across 5 continents with over 240 daily departures. Its latest destinations include Chengdu in China, Oslo in Norway, Conakry in Guinea and Victoria Falls in Zimbabwe. For enquiries and reservations, please call 03-2141 2190 or visit www.ethiopianairlines.com

Children's Fun with QATAR AIRWAYS

Qatar Airways Country Manager Malaysia and Brunei Dato' Muzammil Mohamad, says that the airline, in partnership with famed toy-maker Hasbro Inc. has updated its range of plush toys, children's activity kits and in-flight lunch boxes designed to entertain and delight the global airline's youngest travellers.

Plush infant toys Elefun and Mr. Potato Head are joined on board by classic board-game favourites such as Clue Junior, Guess Who, Monopoly Here and Now World Edition and

The Game of Life for older children, as they go places together with the award-winning airline. Qatar Airways' specially prepared children's meals feature new Pictureka or Monopoly-designed lunch boxes – a gift that children can take home and use long after their flight.

On Qatar Airways' flights, children will stay entertained thanks to the range of different activity kits being provided on flights across the airline's network of more than 150 places. Special thought has been paid to families travelling on overnight flights with the introduction of a glow-in-the-dark Clue Junior entertainment pack; perfect to keep restless youngsters busy once the lights are dimmed.

The updated plush toys, activity-kits and lunch boxes, containing comforting favourites such as healthy and delicious pastas, fish or chicken dishes, fresh seasonal fruit, fruit juice, and sweet treats, are now being rolled out across the airline's global network of destinations.

Dato' Muzammil Mohamad said: "Qatar Airways is committed to providing the very best customer-experience to families flying with us, and that includes continually updating our children's activity-kits with different games to ensure our young travellers remain engaged, and most importantly – entertained. All of our children's activity packs and lunch boxes are mementos that remind them of our journey together."

He add that the airline operates 21 flights a week between Kuala Lumpur and Doha with onward connections to Europe, the Americas, Africa and the Middle East via its Doha hub. For more information, visit www.qatarairways.com or call 03-2118 6100.

LUCKY AIR arrives in Penang

Lucky Air has started its flight to Penang International Airport (PIA) with its inaugural flight in December. The twice-weekly flight service between Kunming City and Penang operates a Boeing 737-800 aircraft.

Suhaimi Abdul Mubin, the General Manager of Malaysia Airports Sdn Bhd said, "Malaysia Airports is delighted to welcome Lucky Air to Penang International Airport. The inclusion of Lucky Air into the Penang International Airport family will further promote the airport as a preferred hub in this region." He added that as of November 2016, Penang International Airport had registered an increase of approximately 6.3% in passengers' movement compared to the same period in 2015.

Suhaimi added, "Travellers now will have the option to use Penang via Lucky Air to connect with other major cities in China. I am confident it will also enhance the image and reputation of the airline as a transportation-conduit among air-travellers in this region."

Headquartered in Kunming Changshui International Airport in Yunnan Province, the carrier is a subsidiary to Hainan Airlines rebranded to further explore the potential in the Chinese low-cost market. Founded in 2004, Lucky Air owns a fleet of 36 airplanes including 12 Boeing 737-700s, 14 Boeing 737-800s, 3 Airbus 319s and 7 Airbus 320-200s. Originally known as Shilin Airlines, the airline is now owned by Hainan Airlines, Shanxi Airlines and Yunnan Shilin Tourism Aviation. It connects 26 provinces and 40 cities with 37 routes.

EVA AIR Gudetama Success

Eva Air General Manager Malaysia Joe Huang says that the airline's specially-painted Sanrio family aircraft with an exclusive Gudetama Jet Comfort Flight theme has been a success in the recent month since its launch. Adding to its popular Hello Kitty and Sanrio-character services, Eva operates the brightly liveried Gudetama Comfort Flights on regional and short-range routes within Asia.

The Gudetama Jet Comfort Flight is an Airbus A321-200 configured for 184 passengers, eight in Business Class and 176 in Economy. It is Eva's first specially painted A321. "To keep our themed flights fresh, lively and fun for passengers, we chose superstar Gudetama to decorate our fleet. Different from the sweet image of Hello Kitty, Gudetama symbolizes a laid-back, relaxed style of travel. Travel with Eva can be easy, comfortable, spontaneous and completely relaxing. It's a travel style that's perfect for busy people with hectic schedules", says Joe Huang.

Gudetama is always sunny-side-up on Eva's aircraft. The new livery captures the relaxed spirit of the bright yellow Gudetama as he leisurely packs sunglasses, camera, hat and bacon into his bag, taking just one little break before he flies away on a memorable holiday. He also decorates interiors and service items, creating a relaxing flying experience inside and out. Onboard, flight attendants wear aprons embellished with the Gudetama design and passengers use in-flight service items depicting the loveable character. Items include Gudetama headrest covers, pillows, safety cards, beverage menus, disposable hand towels, tray mats, napkins, cups, meal boxes, food trays, chopstick wrappers, utensils, meals, snacks, floss picks, slippers and playing cards.

Joe Huang says that the airline has 11 flights a week between Kuala Lumpur and Taipei. With Eva Air's free mobile app, you can stay up-to-date with flight schedules and booking information. Alternatively, you can visit www.evaair.com or call Eva Air at 03-2162 2981.

An enchanting evening with THAI

Thai Airways International recently hosted a very special dinner for its travel-agents in the state of Perak at the private wine-cellar of Tan Sri Dr. Jeffrey Cheah, Chairman of Sunway Group, inside the exclusive Banjaran HotSpring Resort in Ipoh.

Nivat Chantarachoti, General Manager of Thai Airways for Malaysia and Brunei, welcomed travel agents, mostly from Ipoh and Taiping, for this eight-course sit-down

Express Rail Link and Malindo Air jointly hosted the official launching of Malindo Air's City Centre Check-in Service & Ticketing Office at ERL's KL City Air Terminal, KL Sentral Station last month.

It was launched by Deputy Minister of Transport, Datuk Aziz Kaprawi, who said that it was a source of pride to the nation that the KL City Air Terminal was one of very few in the world, and that ERL itself had been named the world's best air-rail link four times. He added that he was gratified to see the fresh investments Malindo Air was making in Malaysia, both in new aircraft and in facilities such as the new City Centre Check-In Service and the new Ticketing Office.

“THE FOCUS IS ALWAYS ON GUEST-EXPERIENCE”

An Operations Manager describes the special combination of hospitality and aviation.

Interview with Kimberly Wong
Country Manager,
Plaza Premium Group

Born and raised in the Pearl of the Orient, this “Proud-to-be-a-Penangite” Manager began her working life at a major Japanese manufacturer in Petaling Jaya before quickly returning to Penang to enter the hospitality industry in 1988. In the three decades since, she has worked with well-known local and international hotel-chains at their offices in Penang, Langkawi, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore, covering prime properties across Malaysia as well as various destinations in Myanmar and Australia.

Brief periods in event-management and theme-parks have only enhanced Kimberly Wong’s passion for the hospitality industry; a fact readily attested to by associates. “She’s a hospitality-professional through and through. Whatever your marketing strategy or your operational needs, she will question you from a guest’s perspective before proceeding”, says an admiring employee. “Working under her, I learnt to put our guests first in everything I do at work.”

An experienced hotelier has a different comment. “Kimberly Wong is friendly, feisty and focused - all in one. She is usually a kind and friendly person, but if you try cutting corners or taking advantage of things, you’ll find that she is a formidable foe. Little bit like a headmistress, lah. If you’re good, she’s good – if you try to be funny she is very firm and ‘fierce’. Basically, she is fully focused on customer service.”

In person, Kimberly Wong comes across as bubbly, cheerful and quite dedicated to her work. No matter where the conversation drifts, she quietly steers it back to the company she works for – of which she is obviously very proud.

Plaza Premium Lounge is a global service brand headquartered in Hong Kong, as well as the global industry leader in Premium Airport Services. The company’s goal is to make an air-traveller’s airport experience seamless and effortless, and to change the general perception of travel at the airport through its services. Identifying a gap in the market, Founder and CEO Song Hoi-see launched the first Plaza Premium Lounges at Hong Kong International Airport and Kuala Lumpur International Airport in 1998. These were the world’s first independent airport lounges.

Open to all travellers regardless of airline or travel class, the service-oriented Plaza Premium Lounge concept was driven by a heartfelt desire “to do something for the majority”. Through his initiative and vision, this innovative entrepreneur has changed the perception that airport lounges should be exclusively reserved for elite travellers.

Today, with more than 18 years of unrivalled experience offering premium airport services, Plaza Premium Lounge Management Limited sets the benchmark for airport value-added services. The company’s services now range from designing, operating and managing premium airport lounges, both independent and on behalf of airlines, transit hotels, private relaxation suites, meet and greet services, dining concepts, business and conference centres and limousine services.

The company now operates in more than 140 locations in 35 airports globally, and counts over 4000 employees. The success of the business model has prompted airport authorities around the world to open their doors to independent lounge facilities and value-added airport services as part of a bid to enhance the overall traveller experience as well as to raise airport service quality.

Kimberly Wong’s current responsibilities cover Malaysia and Cambodia, though industry analysts think her portfolio may soon be extended. In Malaysia, she currently oversees ten Plaza Premium Lounges at the five international airports across the country. At the nation’s flagship air-hub in Sepang, her work also covers the other business-pillars of the Group: Wellness Spa in KLIA and klia2, The Bar and The Green Market in klia2, Flight Club and Flight Club Grab’n Go in KLIA, as well as VIP Meet & Greet services in both terminals. It is a fair difference from her previous career as a hotelier, which automatically raises the question why she made the career-change.

“Well, coming into the Plaza Premium Group is only a change of career in certain aspects. We are definitely an airport-based company, and some operational and marketing issues are certainly unique to our location. But in most other senses, the ethics, values and practice of the hospitality industry are the same. Operationally, just like a stand-alone hotel or a one-owner chain, we still have just one landlord all across this country – and Malaysia Airports is actually a very progressive, partner-centric and service-oriented company which shares our top priority of enhancing the airport experience”, she explains.

“Our marketing efforts are to the same groups as hotels: airlines, travel agents, companies, public-sector institutions and individual frequent-flyers. Operationally, I think the Core Values of Plaza Premium sums things up very simply and accurately: Excellent Service, Teamwork, Innovation. And most of all, in whatever outlet we run, the service delivery and priority is exactly the same – the guest comes first at all times. Whether it is a premium lounge, a spa, a hotel or a restaurant, the aim is to be the best; and the focus is always on Guest Experience.”

Art aficionados' eyes glimmered with excitement at the magnificent prospects awaiting them. The crowd turn-out was intimate yet substantial, showing a vested interest in the variants of art KLAS offered.

The show stealer of the auction was Cheong Soo Pieng's 'Houses on Riverside', 1973. It did not come as a surprise that the bids for his paintings were neck to neck, opening at RM50,000 and finally topping the sales at a whopping RM103,702.40, the most expensive piece sold at the auction.

The 'E.O.C. Rumbia dan Pucuk Paku, 1992' (1988) by Awang Damit followed suit with his painting being sold beyond the estimated upper limit, at RM64,250.40. Tailing closely behind was Ahmad Zaki Anwar's 'Legong 4', (1997) a piece that sold higher than its opening price, at RM57,487.20 which fared badly considering it was sold at RM118,000 two years ago. Ahmad Zaki's disappointing result was echoed in the Tajudin Ismail artwork which did not gain any interest, hence unsold during the auction and snatched up only later in the post auction sales for RM25,200.

Ismail Abdul Latiff's work, 'Mystery Tour... Magical Love Bird (2014)', also garnered a respectable high price, almost double the opening price. Datuk Chuah Thean Teng's 'Self Potrait' proved to be a crowd pleaser when it was sold for RM7,890.40 compared to the opening price of RM3,500.

Unfortunately, newcomer to the auction, Sabri Salleh's 'Power of Light' (1996) did not garner much attention, sold for a mere price of RM3,945.20, below its opening price of RM5,000. Renowned artist Raffiee Ghani fell short with his 'Hanging Garden' (2003) at RM2,254.00, just a few hundred ringgit above its opening price.

KLAS is in the midst of organising the next auction, which is scheduled for March 12, 2017.

Art collectors and interested buyers are welcomed to visit KLAS @ 31 Jalan Utara, and its website at www.klifestyle.com.my for the latest news. Yusof Ghani, a name that needs no introduction garnered sales with his 'Segerak Series', (2007) being sold at RM34,943.20. His 'Siri Tari', (1992) on the other hand, opened for RM2,500 and finally sold for RM3,381.60 to a lucky bidder.

Datuk Ibrahim Hussein's rare and first time seen in Malaysia masterpiece 'The Traveller' (1964), literally travelled for the first time from New York to Malaysia was not far behind. His piece artwork on paper opened at RM28,000 and was finally sold after a bid war at RM31,561.60. John Lee Joo For gained a respectable new Malaysian record high price of RM30,434.40 for his piece, 'The Spirit That Can't Be Contained' (1980), after opening at a mere RM7,000.

Anyone familiar with Malaysia's contemporary art scene can certainly recognise Abdul Multhalib Musa as one of Malaysia's leading contemporary sculptors. His unique and energetic sculptures have earned him not only a name for himself, but several awards, residencies and commissions. Abdul Multhalib was born in Penang, in 1976. He gained a degree in architecture from Universiti Teknologi Mara in 2000. Sculpture and the allied arts have always been integral parts of an architect's training. This sparked a hidden fire and generated an interest in the arts. Multhalib uses his experience and degree in architecture by seamlessly materialising it into his works.

Multhalib sculptures exhibit magnetic energy and unmistakable silhouettes that justify the numerous awards under his belt. Multhalib's most recent residency was the 2015 Cité Internationale des Arts, funded by the French Embassy in Kuala Lumpur. His notable residencies were the Rimbun Dahan Residency in 2001 and the Australian High Commission Residency in 2004. In 2002, Multhalib was recognised for his work, winning the Award of Excellence at the 6th Oita Asian Sculpture Open Competition in Japan. Subsequently, he also won the Juror's Choice Award at the National Art Gallery in Kuala Lumpur in 2002. He was then selected for the Ordos 11th Asia Arts Festival, Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region, China, as well as the Urumqi International Urban Sculpture Symposium in Xinjiang, China in 2009. Multhalib went on to achieve great heights by winning a competition to design a major outdoor sculpture for the 2008 Beijing Olympics in China. Multhalib had undertaken major commissioned works for Petronas, The Hilton, The Grand Hyatt, The Westin, Aliya and Farouk Khan and UMW Toyota.

Perhaps it was the predominant way of his architectural background that played a part in his sculptural practice, paving a way to his approach in constructing his sculptures. Multhalib uses technology as part of his process, to aid him in visualising three-dimensional patterns. Then, if need be, he creates mini prototypes of that vision to ensure the right use of tools. It also helps him resolve any issues before the actual production commences. He is often aided by a team of builders in the fabrication of his work, similar to a construction of a building. Typically, Muthalib's sculptures go through a laser-cut steel. In order to attain his signature rusty effect, he would then douse his works in salt water and lo and behold, his masterpieces come to life only to be coveted by art aficionados.

According to Abdul Muthalib, the conception of his works is spontaneous, non-linear and they are derived from experiences and what he feels. He draws from the natural surroundings as well as built environment. He explained, "At this stage, I have come to perceive the self as a composite that is often contradictory and internally incomplete. Perhaps this is one way to relate to my work, in a sense that it is conceptualised and manifested in fragments and aggregates to reveal a certain personal characteristic that challenges the reader to engage with the work at various levels of interpretation." Muthalib fully utilises geometric shapes in his sculptures. Furthermore, mathematical shapes and equations of swirls, circles and ovals are abundant in the composition of his circular series, entitled, 'Swirls'. His series was showcased at the Australian High Commission Kuala Lumpur in 2005, featuring as the title suggests, a series of circular sculptures. He had showcased two of his other works, the Involute series (2005) and Twist (2008).

Multhalib approaches all his work with a consideration he developed while working on his Involute series. Although he considers all his works to be part of the same series, it also portrays how vastly different they are under different circumstances such as the shows they are displayed at the time and titles they hold. Abdul Multhalib lives by an unwavering principle to date, which is to transform two-dimensional creations to three dimensional figures in order to establish a connection between his sculptures and his audiences. It was initially a fundamental principle he had learnt in architecture which was then applied to art too. After all, beauty is in the eye of its beholder.

Abdul Multhalib's 'Involute' series consists of suspended spherical mobile sculptures. One can say that it shares an apparent similarity in aesthetics with the 'Swirl' series and his works from the 'Twist' series which debuted back in 2008. As mentioned earlier, Multhalib considers all his series similar and as one, yet they differ greatly depending on circumstances. The Twist series features a series of sliced 'S' shapes standing up in tall totem-like structures.

You may recognise some of Multhalib's works in public spaces, prominently the Patience of Petronas which graces the lobby of Prince Court Medical Centre and The Essence of National Legacy which can be seen at the Putrajaya International Convention Centre. While there aren't a lot of public sculptures, Multhalib adds his art to be part of the Kuala Lumpur skyline which has been referred to as a form of contemporary Malaysian sculpture in itself.

Synonymous with his talent, his success has earned his artworks a place in prestigious hotels, namely, his Breeze and Bubbles for the Hilton Hotel and his latest, Darussalam at the brand new Grand Hyatt. Darussalam is Multhalib's first foray in bronze, and was an interesting development for him as bronze limits laser cutting, which is a typical method by which he handles his metals. The final form therefore greatly differs from his previous works and shows an interesting new development in his repertoire. Rather than consisting of metal slices, the sculpture is a tall smooth edifice, mimicking the building that houses it. A bird's-eye view of the piece outlines a crescent, an icon present in both the Brunei and Malaysian flags, and which is one of the oldest symbols known to mankind signifying splendour and beauty.

Multhalib has masterfully combined his mathematical knowledge, spatial awareness and conceptual abilities to create sculptures that resonate with his audiences, both locally and internationally. Forging his way at the forefront of the contemporary Malaysian sculpture movement, Multhalib's ability to connect his works to the spaces that they inhabit, all the while exploring the precarious division of two and three dimensionalities, brands him as an exciting artist whose coming works are poised for an electrifying future.

Tan Sri Francis Yeoh

HONOURED AT CAPRI

Francis Yeoh, La La Land and Andrea Bocelli won awards at Hollywood International Film Festival

La La Land has not only taken over the world by storm but it also bagged three major awards at the Capri Hollywood International Film Festival, as announced by Festival founder and producer, Pascal Vicedomini. The revelries started when La La Land's soundtrack won for 'Best Score of the Year' at The Capri, Hollywood Award. The original American romantic musical was written and directed by Damien Chazelle with its score composed by Justin Hurwitz. This marked its second Capri award for "La La Land", the other, being announced as 'Best Ensemble Acting'.

In addition, there was no surprise when internationally renowned singer, Andrea Bocelli won the 'Best Traditional Pop Vocal Album' award for his latest album entitled 'Cinema'. Malaysia had also made its name during the The 'Capri Legend Humanitarian Award' presentation through Malaysian entrepreneur-philanthropist, Tan Sri Francis Yeoh for his philanthropic activity by way of music.

These awards were presented on the evening of December 30 during the festival's 21st edition which took place on this picturesque isle, off the coast of Naples from December 27 through January 2, 2017. The highlight of the evening was a performance by classical singer Carly Paoli, who was asked by the Vatican to adopt her song 'Ave Maria' to be the official song for Pope Francis' 'Jubilee for Mercy' celebrations. The song rapidly became a No. 1 hit on the iTunes Charts in the UK, Italy, Singapore and Malaysia. On December 26, Carly returned to Rome to headline 'La Dolce Vita,' a concert devoted to Italian cinema music.

"Each of these three awards are very significant in their own way," said Vicedomini. "Sir Francis Yeoh is a true supporter of the arts on a global basis; Andrea Bocelli is a world-class performer whose new album is a tribute to the music of cinema, and the score of 'La La Land' is impactful and memorable and set the tone for this year's movie music. We are thrilled to be honouring them at Capri, Hollywood International Film Festival.

Written and directed by Academy Award® nominee Damien Chazelle, and featuring an outstanding cast which includes Ryan Gosling, Emma Stone, John Legend, Rosemarie DeWitt and J. K. Simmons, "La La Land" is set in modern day Los Angeles and tells the story of Mia (Stone), an aspiring actress, and Sebastian (Gosling), a dedicated jazz musician, who are struggling to make ends meet in a city known for crushing hopes and breaking hearts. The film from Lionsgate's Summit Entertainment, which was released in Italy by the Leone Film Group, screened on the evening of January 1. Andrea Bocelli's "Cinema," was nominated for a Grammy Award in the 'Best Traditional Pop Vocal Album' category, featuring renditions of songs from classic film soundtracks and scores including "Maria" (West Side Story), "Lara's Theme" (Dr. Zhivago), "The Music of the Night" (The Phantom of the Opera), "Moon River" (Breakfast at Tiffany's) and "Cheek to Cheek" (Top Hat). The album was produced by Tony Renis, David Foster and Humberto Gatica.

Tan Sri Francis Yeoh is the managing director of YTL Group of Companies. He took over his family's company in 1988 and grew it into a global Infrastructure development conglomerate. Ranked as one of "Asia's 25 Most Powerful and Influential Business Personalities" by Fortune and Business Week, he advocates Godly stewardship of business. He is also on the Advisory Councils of London Business School, Wharton School and INSEAD. In 2006, Yeoh was awarded the Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire (CBE) by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II. Apart from that, he also supports environmental conservation and renewable energy initiatives, serving the Nature Conservancy's Asia Pacific Council. He champions the arts and co-founded the Kuala Lumpur Performing Arts Centre. He is the regional chairman of International Friends of the Louvre.

Capri, Hollywood 2016 was presided over by Barry Morrow (Oscar-winner for the screenplay of "Rain Man") and by Israeli singer Noa. This year, the festival revolved around the theme of 'Mercy' and included special guests such as director Gianfranco Rosi, whose "Fuocoammare" (Sea of Fire) is Italy's Best Foreign Language Film entry in the Oscar's, recognised as 'Best European Film' and 'Best Documentary of the Year'. Israeli Amos Gitai, received the "Capri Award" for his Lifetime Achievements. Subsequently, American producer Bill Mechanic, was named 'Producer of the Year' for Mel Gibson's "Hacksaw Ridge". The 21st edition of Capri, Hollywood was supported by MIBACT (D.G. Cinema), and the Campania Region in collaboration with the City of Capri and the Municipality of Anacapri, as well as a number of private sponsors.

NASIM LAUNCHES NEW PEUGEOT 208 PURETECH AND NEW PEUGEOT 2008 SUV PURETECH

A story of groundbreaking efficiency

Nasim Sdn Bhd, the official distributor for Automobiles Peugeot in Malaysia, has kicked into high gear for the New Year by launching the latest models, the New Peugeot 208 Puretech and New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech, to complement current line-up.

The New Peugeot 208 Puretech asserts itself as a show-stopping hatchback with a new styling that shines bright with attraction and character, new technology for greater comfort and safety, and a new fuel-efficient engine that offers both economy and performance. Just as impressive, the New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech stands out in the SUV segment where its appeal lies in its exclusive combination of robustness and sophistication. It provides unique sensations with its dynamic styling, innovative technological equipment and unparalleled road handling.

"Peugeot has always been at the forefront of automotive innovation and technology. In 2013, the Peugeot i-Cockpit was introduced to Malaysia which reinvented the driving experience with an innovative layout. Now, Malaysians will be treated to the new award-winning Puretech engine, a product of Peugeot's 100 years of intelligent and innovative engineering. The New Peugeot 208 Puretech and New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech are the first wave of new models we will be launching this year in a bid to prevail in the increasingly competitive automotive market," said Datuk Samson Anand George, Group Chief Operating Officer, Automotive Group, Naza Corporation Holdings.

What set these Peugeots apart from their previous incarnations are their award-winning engines. Winner of the 2015 and 2016 'International Engine of the Year' awards presented by the British magazine 'Engine Technology International', Peugeot Puretech is an advanced petrol engine technology that offers a drive and performance normally associated with much bigger engines but with significantly improved fuel consumption and CO2 emissions.

The New Peugeot 208 Puretech exudes character and allure at first sight with its new assertive, robust and distinctive styling. The new bumper presents a sharper, more precise and muscular line alongside a fully integrated wider grille and thicker chrome finisher combined with separate front fog lamps, new front headlamps, 3D LED rear lamps and an LED light signature that captivates and surprises atop 16-inch alloy wheels. Together, they suggest the quality and robustness characteristic of a Peugeot hatchback.

The New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech strikes a powerful silhouette through its new robust vertical front grille which features the lion at the centre of its multifaceted grid. Its muscularity is further emphasised by the 17-inch Hyde Antra dual-tone rims. The appeal of the New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech is enhanced by its elegant, newly designed lighting signature consisting of LED daytime running lamps, front fog lamps with cornering assist lighting and 3D rear lamps.

A refined interior built around driving sensations awaits drivers and passengers as soon as they step inside. The revolutionary Peugeot i-Cockpit makes for a welcoming sight as it delivers a stimulating, incisive and safe driving experience. This innovatively designed layout was deservedly recognised at the 29th Annual Festival Automobile International by winning 'Most Beautiful Interior'.

Committed to reliability and protection, the New Peugeot 208 Puretech and New Peugeot 2008 SUV Puretech honour Peugeot's stringent safety standards as exemplified in its comprehensive safety systems. Both achieved five-star ratings from Euro NCAP for maximum safety at every level to their driver and passengers, thanks to their six airbags and an Electronic Stability Program (ESP) featuring Anti-Lock Braking System (ABS), Electronic Brake Distribution (EBD), Emergency Brake Assist (EBA), Anti-Skid Regulation (ASR) and Dynamic Stability Control (DSC). Other safety features include Very High Strength Steel grade body construction, Hill Start Assist, three sets of ISOFIX points at the rear for child seats, pretensioner safety belt with load limiter and seatbelt alarm audio, advanced electric power steering and Peugeot Rolling Code Transponder immobiliser security.

ROSANNE HORTENSIUS

From the Netherlands to Malaysia

Where are you originally from and what was your hometown like?

I was born and raised in Zoetermeer, the Netherlands, but had since been living in Amsterdam. Amsterdam is an amazing city! There is always something cultural to do. For example, Amsterdam hosts food truck festivals, a 'Light Festival' where lightened-up artworks are showcased along the canals, 'Kings Day' when everybody dresses up in orange clothes and celebrates the birthday of the King by dancing in the streets and boating the canals, or 'Museum Night' where you can visit all museums in Amsterdam at night instead of during the day, when DJs play tunes while you have a drink. Next to that, I love the fact that everybody uses a bicycle as the main form of transport. Even our prime minister goes to work on his bicycle occasionally! There are actually said to be more bicycles than people in Amsterdam.

When did you arrive in Malaysia and what was your first impression?

I first arrived in KL in February 2016 during the Chinese New Year. I was really impressed by the size of the city, the skyscrapers plus rooftop bars, and the number of huge malls. I like the green surroundings of the city and to me it feels very tropical to see all the palm trees next to the roads.

I love the weather as we have four seasons back home, and it's generally not that warm. I didn't understand why everybody was always turning on the air-conditioner to make it cold and would bring a sweater to work, to the mall and especially to the cinema. As of now, I am already used to it and cannot live without air-conditioning as well.

I had heard a lot of bad things about the traffic in KL, but it really didn't seem so bad to me, and I thought it was a bit over-exaggerated. One week later, when the Chinese New Year holiday was over, I perfectly understood what everybody was talking about when I experienced real traffic.

What was the transition like moving from country to country? Do you ever get homesick?

I never get homesick because I feel at home in a new country very quickly. I have lived abroad before, so that might have helped with my transition too. I love exploring a new city and making it my own by finding a favourite coffee bar, supermarket, gym and most importantly, by making new friends from all over the world.

Having said that, living in Malaysia is very different from living in the Netherlands, and it took some time before I got used to and became familiar with all the local habits.

What do you do for a living?

As the general manager of Saleduck Asia, I lead the setup and growth of Saleduck's activities in South-East Asia, hence why I moved here. Saleduck is a user-curated online deal community that features the best coupon codes and deals from partners such as Lazada, Zalora and Expedia. I am responsible for all our South-East Asian activities, i.e. the strategy, training employees etc. Currently, we are active in Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Indonesia, and the Philippines, and more countries are to follow soon.

How did you get this career?

After I obtained my Master's degree in Policy, Communication and Organisation in 2012, I travelled around South America for six months. I wrote a blog about my experiences there, and it fascinated me to see how other bloggers were able to get their websites up in Google search results, and get so many newsletter subscribers, page view, and followers on social media. When I came back I stopped blogging, but wanted to learn more about online marketing and knew I wanted to become an online marketer. I started working for Saleduck, back then called Bridge Marketing, and quickly worked my way up to first become marketing manager, then commercial manager, and finally general manager.

With sister Madelon at Helipad

What was the turning point of your career and your secret to success?

I think the turning point of my career was in 2015 when Saleduck started to expand to seven new countries within Europe. I was responsible for the training of our new employees and setting up the marketing activities for each new country. Because this went really well and became a big success, our CEO and I were convinced I could successfully roll out our Saleduck brand in South-East Asia too.

Personally, I feel like the secret to success is having a team around you that is fun, enthusiastic, smart and creative. That will motivate you to get the best out of yourself. You also have to be willing to take risks and make firm decisions.

What is it that you love about what you do? Any challenges?

What I love most is seeing the people that we have hired grow so much. Most of the time we hire people who don't have a lot of working experience and it is amazing to see them become independent, and see that they feel responsible for their market. There are always challenges but it's great to be able to tackle them with the team, and this actually makes our bond stronger.

Tell us about your family.

My mom is a teacher and my dad is a jurist. I also have a sister who is three years younger than me. We don't Skype or FaceTime that often because of the time difference but we send WhatsApp messages almost every day. Actually, my first introduction to Malaysia was a family holiday with them to Langkawi many years ago. Both my parents and sister came to Malaysia again now that I am living here, and they saw a bit more of the country this time.

Any funny stories or interesting experience that happened while you've been in Malaysia?

In the Netherlands, small talk is always about the weather. It was funny for me to notice that everybody here mostly talks about food when making conversation. At business meetings, people would always ask me, "did you have your breakfast or dinner already?" For me, this was a bit of an odd question and at first I didn't really know how I was supposed to answer this question. Just by saying yes or no? Or name all the things I ate?

I found it very interesting to see how welcoming everybody here is, no matter the religion or culture. At work there is no gossip about each other, and new employees are always immediately invited by someone to come for lunch. At my gym, everybody is always so friendly to each other and people make conversation with everyone. In the Netherlands, people mind their own business most of the time when going to the gym, but I like the Malaysian way better.

Have you tried any of the local food in Malaysia? Do you have any favourites?

I am in love with the food in Malaysia, especially Indian and Malay food. My favourite dish is Nasi Lemak Rendang (locals are always surprised I can eat spicy food), although I prefer it for dinner instead of breakfast like the locals. My colleagues let me try a lot of local dishes and I like them all! Except for durian.. I don't really speak Malay but I am safe just knowing 'Jom makan' (let's go eat).

Any favourite holiday destinations in Malaysia so far?

That's a very tough question. I explored quite a lot of Malaysia and enjoyed both city life and nature. But most of all I love the beaches, so my number one destination would either be Perhentian Kecil Island or Tioman Island. I took my sister to Perhentian Kecil Island and celebrated my birthday at Tioman Island with one of my best friends, so I have very fond memories of them both.

What is your current project and what is your vision for your current company?

I just finished our marketing strategy for 2017 for our European and South-East Asian markets. It is our goal to double both in employee size and turnover in 2017. I am now busy with so-called 'growth hacking', focusing only on growth by testing innovations and creating ideas, working closely together with IT and design.

What is your advice to those who would love to pursue your career line or take the plunge into the unknown?

Do it! It is so great to experience a different country and its cultures. Also, take initiative in meeting people, both other expats and locals.

Reminiscing about my staycation at Sunway Clio Hotel puts a smile on my face. My friends and I have certainly made memories at this establishment. This brand new 4-star hotel has a whopping 401 rooms that await your presence.

Nestled in the prime location of Sunway city, this hotel offers more than just accommodation. Patrons are spoilt for choice with over 900 retail stores and 170 food and beverage outlets available within the integrated resort destination. Not to mention, its list of attractions and facilities such as Sunway Lagoon and Sunway Pyramid is sure to knock your socks off.

If you are from the city, this could be the perfect weekend escape for you and your family. Treat your kids to a splash of fun at the Sunway Lagoon theme park and perhaps some retail therapy for yourself. If you are looking for some alone time with your partner, take them for an ice-skating ride at Sunway Pyramid shopping mall. To sum up the day, indulge in a buffet spread at the Resort Café at Sunway Resort Hotel, which is a short walk away through the mall. My friends and I had a blast at the Resort Café. We stuffed ourselves with the wide and scrumptious array of fare offered, from western to favourite local delights. Initially, we were quite flabbergasted with the choices, but it only lasted for a second. Next thing I knew, my friends had scurried away to fill their plates. We covered it all; from the juicy prawns, to pizzas and pastas to the chocolate fountain.

Speaking of amenities and facilities, you would be elated to know that Sunway Clio Hotel offers an infinity pool that overlooks the Sunway Lagoon theme park and the city skyline. The pool is surrounded by lounge chairs for you to bask in the sun. It is especially nice to take a dip in the morning and evening. If you don't mind the heat, the pool is fairly empty in the afternoon. Given the weather in Malaysia, a swim on a hot day is refreshing. Alternatively, you can work up a sweat at their fitness centre.

When the girls and I stepped into the Superior Executive Park View King room, the three of us literally halted at the same time to take it all in. Our eyes widened with wonder and awe of the sight before us. The view before us was a spacious and inviting one, decorated in the simplest yet elegant manner. We were pleasantly greeted by welcoming tunes played on the TV and a basket containing an assortment of fruits. To top it all off, we also received a welcome card from the Duty Manager of Sunway Clio Hotel. The little details portrayed the staff's exemplary hospitality and how courteous they are with their guests. Needless to say, we were gleaming with happiness.

As for the interior of the room, our inner child squealed in delight at the sight of the massive king size bed and long window panes that gave a scenic view of the Sunway Lagoon theme park and the city's skyline. Hints of grey accents garnish the room's interior such as the seating chairs and the curtains that complement the beige tone of the walls. However, the highlight of the room for me is if you wake up early enough, you would be able to witness of the glorious sunrise. On another note, I can't even begin to tell you how spacious the bathroom is. The architecture of the entire room makes good use of space. The shower area alone can fit a family of five people (I'm not even kidding).

After a well-deserved slumber, we took turns to stand under the cascading waters from the rain shower. It truly felt like standing under a therapeutic rain. Our stomachs then growled to be fed and therefore we made our way to Café West (located on the 8th floor of the hotel). Yet again, we were greeted by an assortment of food. They had waffles, pancakes, cereal, bread, nasi lemak, dim sum, pao and a dedicated egg station to make you any kind of preparation you want. Naturally, the glutton in us made sure we left no plates unturned. I'm proud to say that we did some justice to the exquisite fare offered. A weekend at Sunway Clio Hotel was a well-deserved stay. They made us feel like princesses for the two days. The amount of thought put into the most minute details made our stay perfect.

LE MERIDIEN SINGAPORE, SENTOSA

Destination Unlocked

BY JACQUELINE BENITA PAUL

Singapore is, without doubt, one of the world's most chic and modern countries, and if you're treating your beloved to a long weekend, take them to Le Meridien Sentosa. It is situated directly opposite of Imbiah Station on the Sentosa Express monorail, Le Meridien Singapore, Sentosa is just minutes from a myriad of attractions including the Merlion Sentosa, Universal Studios Singapore, S.E.A. Aquarium, KidZania Singapore as well as world-class culinary delights and entertainment.

Inspired by its European heritage and mid-century modern design, Le Meridien offers a unique experience at one of the world's top travel destinations. Since June last year, Le Meridien has undergone a brand makeover that has brought back the Le Meridien brand to Singapore after nearly a decade. The new design was innovated by DP Architects and Japanese studio Super Potato to provide a juxtaposition of the old and the new, offering a glimpse of Singapore's vibrant past and present.

The hotel complex comprises a contemporary building and a pair of restored former barracks, which housed Southeast Asia's first Malay artillery back in 1940. The hotel features 191 contemporary guestrooms, including suites with Japanese outdoor private Onsen pool, and a duplex penthouse suite with its own rooftop garden and infinity pool. Other facilities include a swimming pool and 243 square metres of versatile function space, with 198 square metres of pillar-less ballroom fitted with floor-to-ceiling windows.

This hotel is for lovers of minimalism: unostentatious architecture that preserves the elements of tradition, lovers of good use of space, and lovers of intuitive service. It's a palace that has a luxurious feel without adding frills and glitz, so if you fancy a place that has over-the-top décor and design, this might not be the hotel for you. If, on the other hand, you want to enter a hassle-free, sophisticated space, check in!

Another highlight of the Le Meridien, Sentosa is the Le Meridien Hub which reinterprets the traditional hotel lobby into a social gathering place. Built on the brand's award-winning arrival experience and coffee culture, the key features include signature elements from the Paris-born brand such as 24-hour soundtrack curated by French Bossa Nova band Nouvelle Vague, a variety of delectable eclairs, exclusive illy coffee prepared by master baristas, and sparking cocktails inspired by Europe's aperitif hour. Their dining offerings include World of Whisky which is positioned as a haven for single-malt aficionados. Its refined, inviting atmosphere features uniquely crafted wood furnishings and distinctive chandeliers.

The rooms and suites at Le Meridien Hotel vary from small but elegant classic rooms, to the blow-out Penthouse Suite with a private rooftop garden with an infinity pool. All the options have king-sized beds, comforting ambience, contemporary and stylish designs and impeccable natural lighting for that enviable social media posting. The hotel was fully renovated in 2016, and it resembles a private museum. The historic architectural features of the building have been painstakingly preserved, so you might well find your room decorated with colonial elements.
